Industrial Stocks Gain $1-$4, Hit 4-Yr. Peak; Steel Plans 'New Era'

Chrysler, Allied Chemical, Bethlehem Share in Upward Surge.

Steel Merger Told To Public 1st Time

$140,000,000 Program Mapped by Leaders at Pittsburgh.

The Industrial Trend.

Gains of $1 to $4, resulting in the highest averages since 1931, were registered in such stocks as United States Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Allied Chemical, Johns-Manville and Chrysler as trading quickened on the New York Stock Exchange.

The United States Steel Corporation, announcing a "new era" in its policies, reported plans for a vast internal reorganization and and an increase in its improvement program to $140,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 18.—Industrial shares pushed up to a new average high since 1931 on the stock exchange today.

Trading quickened as prices overcame their recent hesitancy. Such issues as United States Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Johns-Manville, Chrysler and Allied Chemical gained $1 to $4 a share to new high levels for the recovery.

Wheat gave up more than a cent of Tuesday's 4-cent-a-bushel rise, but cotton pushed forward to finish with gains of 90 cents to $1.20 a bale.

In the bond mart, United States Government issues recovered quickly after their recent weakness, and a wide assortment of corporate issues were higher.

Guilder Rises.

Recent tension in foreign exchange dealings relaxed. Uneasiness over possible devaluation of the Holland guilder subsided and that currency recovered .15 of a cent to 67.62 cents.

Wall street seemed to take a more hopeful view of the Italo-Ethiopian situation, despite the continued impasse in the negotiations at Geneva, but the markets were dominated almost entirely by hopes of domestic business recovery.

Buying started in steels and motors, as trade reports indicated that the automobile industry would soon get started in earnest on 1936 models. But the buying quickly spread to rails, as last week's freight movement was estimated at the highest level since late 1931, and oils, chemicals, tobaccos, motion picture issues and others participated in the forward movement.

Steel Hits New Top.

Late realizing somewhat reduced the day's extreme gains, but the major portion was retained. The day's transfer of 1,956,480 shares compared with only 1,344,260 yesterday.

U. S. Steel reached a new top at $48.75, up $1.25, then lost most of its gain. A similar gain, most of which was retained, carried Bethlehem to $41.37. Allied Chemical jumped 4 points to $173. Chrysler advanced $2.50 to $74.37 and closed at $73. General Motors closed unchanged at $46.37, after duplicating its previous 1935 high at $47.

'New Era' Announced

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, Sept. 18.—The United States Steel Corporation announced a "new era" in its policy today in a tradition-breaking get-together with Pittsburgh industrial leaders in which its executives told of a vast internal reorganization and of plans to increase its improvement program to $140,000,000.

General Counsel Nathan L. Miller, former Governor of New York, referred to the policies after Board Chairman Myron C. Taylor and President William A. Irvin had explained physical advantages in the combining of the Illinois and Carnegie steel companies into one concern.

"These changes are being made at the beginning of a new era for the steel industry," said Miller, "which may mean a new era for the country as a whole.

Set-Up Simplified.

"This set-up is more of an effort toward simplification and it may turn out that the corporation has been forehanded in being abreast of times in effecting it. It always is well to be forehanded and to do with your own hands what sometimes you might be forced to do under less favorable circumstances."

Miller explained that the merger,

Tom Mooney Confers With Attorneys

Tom Mooney Exhibits Photos In Battle to Prove Innocence

Famous Pictures Placing Lifer Mile From Scene of 1916 Bombing Produced Again at Hearing Before Referee in California.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, Sept. 18.—Tom Mooney, fighting a new battle in his dogged struggle for freedom, sought to show through pictures today that it was impossible for him to have participated in the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing for which he was sentenced to life imprisonment.

The famous pictures—showing Mooney more than a mile from the bombing scene a few minutes before the blast—were produced shortly after he took the stand beginning a habeas corpus hearing before a State Supreme Court referee.

Points Out His Wife.

Mooney pointed out his wife in the snapshot. Then he said:

"You see this clock says 1:58 p. m." (The bomb exploded just off lower Market street, 1¼ miles away, at 2:06 p. m., killing ten persons.)

The remark was stricken because Mooney had not yet been asked about the clock—getting ahead of his lawyer in his eagerness to retell his story.

Another similar photograph was introduced.

"And this clock shows 2:01 p. m.," Mooney again volunteered.

Once more the remark was stricken.

Mooney, seeking freedom in this latest court action on the contention he was convicted in violation of his constitutional rights, testified in detail of his activities the day of the bombing.

Beginning his attempt to show that the testimony of several prosecution witnesses was false, Mooney testified he went to the roof about 1:45 p. m.

In the trial of Warren K. Billings, first to be convicted in the parade bombing, some prosecution witnesses testified Mooney was near the scene of the blast a few minutes before 2 p. m.

The photographs came to light after Billings' conviction. After the faces of the clocks were enlarged in the pictures, some of the prosecution witnesses modified their previous testimony as to the time they saw Mooney near the bombing scene.

The famous prisoner, brought here by a heavy guard from San Quentin Prison, apparently had recovered from the emotional strain which caused him to weep yesterday.

He smiled occasionally and was affable to those about him. He talked smoothly and fluently, as if the years of comparative silence behind San Quentin's walls had not affected his powers of thought and speech. Many of those years he has spent in study.

The Mooney forces failed in a second attempt to have Billings brought here from Folson Prison to testify. State Supreme Court Referee A. E. Shaw ruled it was not necessary. Shaw then ruled that Mooney would not be allowed to go to Folsom when Billings' deposition is taken, probably Monday.

Cubs Trounce Giants, 15 to 3; 15th in Row

Chicagoans Score 8 in 4th as N. Y. Defense Cracks; Cardinals Win.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—Chicago's rampaging Cubs ran their spectacular winning streak to 15 today by crushing the New York Giants, 15 to 3, in a wild and woolly game that left 33,000 pop-eyed fans wondering if Bill Terry's men were in the National League. The Cubs maintained their 2½-game margin over St. Louis, which defeated Brooklyn, 6 to 3.

The decisive victory, decided in a wild fourth inning when the Cubs bunched seven hits with three Giant errors to score eight runs, was the third in succession over New York, tumbling the Giants 6½ games behind the wild Cubs. It was the most crushing defeat of the season for Terry, who left the game in disgust in the seventh inning.

With Charley Root, the "grandpappy" of the pitching staff, muffling the Giant guns with 9-hit pitching and working smoothly despite five of his mates' harmless misplays, the free and easy winging Cubs had a field day, collecting 20 hits off three pitchers, Clyde Castleman, Harry Gumbert and Frank Gabler.

Instead of stopping after their 8-run assault, the merry mad Cubs scored four more runs in the fifth and two more in the sixth before they let up on their fire. Three of their errors came in succession in the sixth after two were out, and even then the Giants failed to score on the run of misplays.

Today's crowd, which brought the paid attendance for the three-game series to above 90,000, saw a ball game for only 3½ innings. The

Wales Wears Cotton For Infection in Ear

Vienna, Sept. 18 (AP).—The Prince of Wales went about this capital today wearing a bit of cotton in one ear after treatment for a slight infection.

The prince gave no indication of discomfort as he visited with President Wilhelm Miklas today or while on a tour of the bars and cafes last night. Prof. Heinrich Neuman, the prince's physician, foresaw no complications and expected the treatment to end in a week.

ManLynched While Jurors Ponder Fate

Officers Are Subdued, Key to Captive's Cell Taken From Desk.

Failure to Reach Quick Verdict in Slaying Is Blamed in Violence.

By the Associated Press.

Oxford, Miss., Sept. 18.—While a jury weighed evidence in his trial on a charge of killing a white farmer, Ellwood Higginbotham, 28, colored, was lynched near here last night.

The screaming, terrified man, accused of shooting Glen Roberts, planter, was seized in the county jail by a mob of 100 to 150 persons and hanged to a tree 2½ miles from town.

The jury, which had been deliberating since late yesterday, was dismissed by Judge Taylor McElroy. It was not learned how it stood.

Jury's Delay Blamed.

Belief was expressed that failure of the jury to return a quick verdict prompted the lynching.

Members of the mob stormed the jail, overpowered Sheriff S. T. Lyles and three deputies and started smashing doors as the officers tried to prevent seizure of the prisoner.

Sheriff's deputies said mob leaders demanded the jail keys and when refused them, took charge of the office, finding the keys in a desk drawer.

After trying several keys, the one to Higginbotham's cell was found and the prisoner was taken to an automobile. A large crowd joined the procession to the scene of the lynching, almost in sight of the State university campus.

The body was left swinging from the tree. It was cut down later by the sheriff and his aids. Officers announced an investigation, but said none of the mob had been identified.

Went to Home, Was Shot.

Roberts was shot May 21 when he went to Higginbotham's home to talk with him.

The State presented testimony the planter was killed "in cold blood" upon attempting to enter the place after Higginbotham had called out "if you want to see me, come into the house."

Aided by track dogs, a posse trailed the fugitive 24 hours, finally capturing him after firing several ineffective shots. Feeling was tense and the prisoner was transferred to the strong jail at Jackson, where he remained until his return yesterday for trial.

Sheriff D. B. Anderson and former Sheriff Roberts, brother of the slain man, said Higginbotham confessed the killing.

Republicans 'Groping' In Dark, Says Harrison

St. Louis, Sept. 18 (AP).—Republicans are "groping in the dark" for a presidential campaign issue for next year, Senator Pat Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, said here today.

The floor leader of the Senate, on a short stopover while waiting for a train to Washington, discounted any possibility of an issue over revision of the Constitution.

It has been only in recent months that Republicans have come forward and criticized the President, he said, and since the NRA decision they have been "fly-specking for an issue."

Potato Act's Enforcement Held Remote

Wallace Doubts Funds Will Be Forthcoming for Checkup.

Indicates He May Seek Amendment of Law at Next Session.

By Felix Bruner.

Secretary Wallace yesterday said that unless funds are made available he will not be able to enforce the potato act passed at the last session of Congress. At the same time he indicated he had no great expectation of obtaining funds.

Thus the Administration is relieved of the job of enforcing a law which has brought on one of the greatest storms of criticism in recent New Deal activities.

The act provides for a tax of three-fourths of a cent a pound on potatoes sold in excess of a national allotment, that potatoes must be packed in specified containers, and provides heavy penalties for both seller and buyer of potatoes sold in violation of the law. It provides for control of every bushel of potatoes produced in the United States and affects an estimated 3,000,000 growers.

The Agriculture Department made no secret of the fact that the task of enforcing the law would be distasteful, and Secretary Wallace said he probably would recommend amendments at the next session of Congress. It is possible that the department will recommend repeal of the law.

Growers Meet Here October 3.

Wallace announced that a meeting of growers will be held here October 3 "to determine whether a potato program should be developed under Title 1 of the potato act of 1935, and, if so, what such a program should include.

Title 1 designates potatoes as a basic commodity and authorizes employment of any of the methods outlined in the agricultural adjustment act for the purpose of increasing agricultural income. The tax and control features, which have brought protests from every part of the country and which already are being used as a powerful political weapon against the New Deal, are in Title 2. This is the section Wallace indicated might be nullified because of the lack of funds.

The deficiency appropriation bill, which was filibustered to death on the last night of the session by the late Senator Long, contained an appropriation of $5,000,000 for enforcement of this title. Later Wallace asked for $2,000,000 from the Treasury for enforcement until an appropriation could be obtained. This request has been in the hands of Comptroller General McCarl since shortly after adjournment. He has not ruled on whether the money will be available and it is understood the Agriculture Department is not pressing him.

"If no funds are available, I don't see how much can be done under Title 2," Wallace said in commenting on his announcement of

Boy, 2, Killed by a Beer Truck, Bringing 1935 Auto Toll to 79

Albert McKenney Crushed to Death as He Runs Into Street; Driver Held Pending Action of Coroner; Cyclist Critically Injured.

Albert McKenney, 2-year-old son of William H. McKenney, of 57 New York avenue northeast, an engineer at Homeopathic Hospital, was killed yesterday morning when his skull was crushed beneath the wheels of a heavy beer truck in front of his home. His death was the seventy-ninth traffic fatality in the District for the year.

The accident occurred when the child ran into the street as the big truck was rumbling along at a slow gait, police were told. Fred E. Beverly, 25, of Richmond, driver of the truck, said his speed could not have been more than 15 miles per hour. He added that the child darted from behind two parked automobiles. Pending the coroner's inquest at 11:30 a. m. today at the District Morgue, Beverly is being held at the Second Precinct.

A green play suit in which the boy was clothed was ripped from his body by the truck, which dragged him 10 or 15 feet.

Just before the accident, Albert had been playing with his sister, Mrs. Lillian Kalterbach, who lives at 50 New York avenue. She was watching him while his mother, Mrs. Anna McKenney, worked in a nearby laundry.

He slipped through the fence, despite the elder sister's warning.

A moment later there was the grinding of the brakes on the big truck. Neighbors were aroused by the screams of Mrs. Kalterbach.

Summoned hastily, Albert's mother collapsed. His father arrived as police photographers were taking pictures of the shattered little body and the truck. He rushed toward his son, but police held him back.

"Hasn't a father got a right to go to his son?" he asked in sad bewilderment.

David Tubbs, 11, of 126 North Carolina avenue southeast, was critically injured late yesterday afternoon, when the bicycle he was riding collided with an automobile in the 900 block of Massachusetts avenue northeast.

He was rushed to Casualty Hospital, where physicians said he suffered several fractured ribs, possible internal injuries and cuts on his hips, arms and legs.

John W. Shepard, 22, of the 3500 block of South Eighth street, Arlington, the driver of the car, was released on his personal bond pending outcome of the boy's injuries.

League Plan for Peace 'Unacceptable' to Italy, Il Duce's Envoys Warn

Britain Sends More Ships to Suez

8 British Destroyers Steaming Toward Suez; Home Games Off

Warships Leave Gibraltar to Join Forces at Canal; North Sea Maneuvers Canceled as Fleet There Fades; Wait Word on Plane Massing in South.

By the Associated Press.

London, Sept. 18.—Eight more of Great Britain's fleetest destroyers hastened down the Mediterranean from Gibraltar toward Suez tonight and the admiralty called off the home fleet's maneuvers in the North Sea. The new ships remaining at Portland, Eng., were ordered to stand by for orders as the foreign office anxiously awaited developments in the Italo-Ethiopian crisis.

Authoritative sources indicated the air ministry would announce soon a recent concentration of aviation reinforcements in the Mediterranean, supplementing those of the fleet.

Naval movements, which were not stressed and were cautiously explained as precautionary, disclosed to the British public for the first time its home fleet no longer exists—only a few battleships and battle cruisers now remain in English waters. All the remainder of the home and Mediterranean fleets have been drawn in powerful lines in and about Suez.

Reports came from Gibraltar that the Nelson, Britain's greatest battleship, carrying Admiral Sir Roger Backhouse, commander of the home fleet, was expected there shortly. This was not confirmed by the admiralty, which had pulled the cloak of secrecy from naval movements and confirmed all recent reports on mysterious moves.

Admiralty statements and Gibraltar reports indicated that today all but two of the 54 destroyers, comprising six squadrons, and practically all available submarines, minesweepers, minelayers, sloops, cruisers and battle cruisers are standing by in the Mediterranean. Military strategists here called it an unprecedented display of force.

Whitehall quarters, while characterizing the movement as not provocative, were represented as feeling the force of this mighty armada display cannot fail to be realized by Italy.

The destroyer Grafton, second of newest "greyhound" class of ships, was launched amidst ceremonies at Woolston and prepared for duty. The sloop Londonderry, also fresh from the shipyards, embarked with its first crew at Devonport and steamed off to the Red Sea to join its squadron.

Indications that the greatest precautionary and preparatory steps have been taken at Malta and Gibraltar reached London. Boom defenses have already been swung across both harbors.

Maneuvers which naval strategists said they considered of the greatest significance continued in the vicinity of the Suez Canal. The Exchange Telegraph from Cairo reported two Italian submarines made the transit

Liberty League Lawyers Hold Labor Act Void

Spokesmen, Grilled, Admit Group Represents Big Business.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

In the first of a series of detailed opinions and briefs on New Deal measures, the national lawyers committee of the American Liberty League yesterday declared the national labor relations act—not yet made effective—unconstitutional.

The report, said to represent the views of 58 "eminent lawyers," was made public at a press conference which bristled and crackled from beginning to end as an unusually large gathering of newspaper correspondents sharply grilled Jouett Shouse, president of the league; Raoul E. Desvernine, chairman of the lawyers committee, and Earl F. Reed, chairman of the sub-committee which drafted the opinion.

Seldom have three men been subjected by the press to such a barrage of questions as to their purposes, interests and motives as occurred yesterday. The questions developed that Desvernine's law firm is counsel for the United States Steel Co.; that Reed, who said he played a major part in drafting the report, is counsel to the Weirton Steel Co., and served in that capacity in a recent effort to upset the labor collective bargaining section of NRA, and that most of the committee of 58 represent large business units.

The crackling pace for the press conference was set by Desvernine when at the outset he read spiritedly a defense of his committee against charges that it was "packed with Republicans" and with legal pleaders for "big business."

He denied making any effort to ascertain the political affiliations of any member of the committee,

Ethiopian Delegate Also Cold to Proposal for 'Modernizing.'

Huge 'War Chest' Planned at Rome

Loan Voted; U. S. May Shift Fleet; England Moves Destroyers.

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.

Geneva, Sept. 18.—A worried League of Nations presented its plan for peace to Italy and to Ethiopia tonight with advance notice from Benito Mussolini's envoys that Italy won't take it.

"Absolutely unacceptable as a basis for negotiation"—that was what Il Duce's delegation to Geneva called the scheme. It would seek to fashion medieval Ethiopia into a modern nation and would strive to satisfy Italy's fond hopes for expansion, but League circles buzzed ominously with the prediction that Mussolini, when he reads the plan, will turn it down flatly.

[It was indicated, the United Press reported, that Ethiopia is none too warm toward the proposal. The Ethiopian delegate, Tekla Hawariot, was quoted as saying: "We won't cut our throat to save our hand. We are unable to sacrifice justice for peace. On this issue depends the life or death of the sovereignty of my country. We already have made great concessions, but there is a limit." Meanwhile, it was understood that Emperor Haile Selassie is delaying the mobilization of 1,500,000 warriors pending Italian action on the peace plan.—Editor's Note.]

Elsewhere in a troubled world the news seemed to emphasize one word: "Prepare!"

From Gibraltar, eight more of Great Britain's swift destroyers foamed through the blue waters of the Mediterranean. As the British admiralty called off home fleet maneuvers in the North Sea—(the home fleet as such scarcely exists because its new men o' war aren't home)—the air ministry was expected in authoritative quarters to be preparing an announcement of concentration of air reinforcements in the Mediterranean.

United States Weighs Move.

[In Washington, the Navy's high command contemplated plans for moving part of the American Pacific fleet to the Atlantic if there is war abroad, and Admiral William H. Standley, chief of naval operations, revealed the Navy would ask funds for a $13,000,000-a-year program of bulwarking the United States fleet with modern auxiliary craft.]

Italy's cabinet hammered out a great war chest, voting a loan to finance the expensive military preparations Il Duce is making in East Africa and at home. The dictator himself, who is eight ministers all in one, pushed through measures to reorganize the tax system; also he ordered military reinforcements massed in colonial Libya, on the western border of Egypt.

Italians have charged that armed Senussite tribesmen have gathered on the Libyan-Egyptian frontier.

In Rome a government spokesman said Italy does not regard the report of the five-power Geneva committee as a basis for discussion, although it will be referred to the Council.

Down in Addis Ababa Emperor Haile Selassie took cognizance of the time-honored military precept that an army fights on its stomach

Other Ethiopian armies down through the ages have lived off the land, but Selassie worked out a systematic organization of food supplies to feed troops and civilians. Already these supplies are ample for a year's campaign.

It's easy to feed the fierce warriors of this ancient land—an Ethiopian soldier can live and fight on a handful of grain every day roasted on an iron slab.

War Call Feared.

A Reuter's (British) news agency dispatch from Harar, Ethiopia, reported that the governor of that province had called all able-bodied men into military service. "Draft dodgers," the dispatch said, will be garbed in women's clothes and driven through the streets to the gallows.

From Algeciras, Spain, across the bay from the great Rock of Gibraltar, came the news that the British citadel had recaptured all its wartime aspect.

Reports reaching Algeciras said subterranean galleries in the rock had been prepared as refuges for the civilian population, that instruction of war days on what to do in in which 70 per cent of the corporation's raw steel production and 20 per cent of the country's will be under a single direction, with headquarters in Pittsburgh, is not meant for a "diminition of either" but for closer cooperation and combined strength.

Steel men said it was the first time the $2,500,000,000 corporation has taken industry and the public into its confidence in such a manner since its organization in 1901.

Luncheon Is Held.

More than 200 of Pittsburgh's outstnading citizens, including Andrew W. Mellon, his nephew, Richard K. Mellon, E. T. Weir, president of National Steel, the two Pennsylvania Senators, Joseph F. Guffey and James J. Davis, ofrmer Senator David A. Reed and leading bankers, university heads and industrialists attended the $5-a-plate luncheon.

Taylor explained that the new Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation has more than 60,000 employes whose annual pay exceeds $110,000,000 annually.

He said the corporatino is now spending about $70,000,000 for plant changes and betterments and will be called upon to "double that amount in the near future."

"We may confidently look forward to that day when the present economic readjustments shall have been completed and the normal pace of business activity is restored, for we have within our borders hte greatest consuming market in the world," Taylor added. He did not disclose any of the specific improvement plans.

New Blood Injected.

In presenting Carnegie-Illinois' president, Benjamin F. Fairless, Irvin assured present executives of the old companies that theirs has been a "first-class job."

"Without reflection on anyone's ability within the old organization, we decided to interject new blood into the new set-up by inviting one of the outstanding young men in the industry to join our forces," asserted Irvin.

Fairless, a ruddy-faced athletic-looking former Youngstown resident, has been vice president of the Republic Steel Corporation. Hhe responded:

"We are all going to work to set this company up and make it a credit, not only to the steel corporation, but to the steel industry as well."

A. W. Mellon and Samuel H. Church, president of Carnegie Tech, responded to Taylor's address, which assured Pittsburgh it would continue to be "first in the steel world."

Supports Community.

"People should realize that the United States Steel Corporation is a dominant supporter to the economic life of our community," said Mellon.

Taylor and his party visited Carnegie's $15,000,000 plate-strip mill now under construction at nearby Homestead, after the luncheon. They left tonight for Chicago for a similar gathering with Midwestern business men.

$309,830 Is Collected In Sales, Auto Levies

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 18 (AP).—Collection of the August 1 per cent gross receipts and automobile titling taxes reached $309,830.12 today, with approximately 5,000 returns still to be validated. A total of 17,927 State retailers paid $274,266.89 in gross receipt taxes during the month. An additional $35,563.23 was received during August from the automobile titling tax.

The sum collected more than covers the $291,666 required for the State's share of the cost of the Maryland emergency relief commission during August.

Between You and Me

Constitution 'Stand-Patters' Have Their Day; Works Relief Bungling; Meet Mr. Beach.

By Raymond Clapper

CONSTITUTION DAY did not afford much encouragement of whatever plans President Roosevelt may have for pressing the constitutional question he raised after the Schechter NRA decision.

Pennsylvania voters, on the question of whether a State convention should be called to revise the State constitution, went against it by a decided majority. Philadelphia and Pittsburgh voted for revision, the smaller localities and the rural sections voting against it.

The Pennsylvania constitution was adopted in the days of Quay, 61 years ago. Last year both party platforms and candidates of both parties indorsed the revision movement. Meantime, the Democrats elected a Governor and agitation for changing the constitution gradually became the project of the Guffey-Earle Democratic organization and was opposed by the Republican organization and by business leaders.

One of the arguments advanced for revision was to expand the power of the State executive. Therefore, to a dgeree at least, the result may reflect the mood of Pennsylvania voters toward President Roosevelt's feeling about the Federal Constitution. It seems to reflect an antagonism to constitutional changes and a desire on the part of voters that there should be a let-up in changes and experimentation.

A Constitution Day election in New Mexico also involved a change in the State constitution—a proposed amendment to exempt from taxation property up to $2,500. War veteran organizations are reported to have opposed this because it would give all property owners the same exemption allowed to veterans. Not enough is known about this contset in Washington to make possible any conclusions as to what it signified. At any rate, the proposed amendment was defeated.

Those are two more or less indicative straws.

Then there was the Constitution Day barrage against altreing the Constitution. Discounting the Republican and other anti-Roosevelt propaganda, which was turned on full force for this occasion, still it attracted wide attention and could scarcely have failed to influence many persons into a hostile attitude toward any constitutional changes.

Therefore, while many persons, including this writer, believe that economic and social conditions will make inevitable enlargement, either by judicial interpretation or constitutional amendment, of the Federal power to deal with these conditions, the straws in the wind indicate public sentiment is growing hostile. If these indications mean anything, they mean that sentiment is jelling against further experimentation, further changes, and that politically, the public longs for peace and quiet and a chance to attend to its knitting with as much privacy as possible.

Contributing to the feeling against experiment is the general disgust with the continued bungling of the works relief program. Voted the money months ago, Mr. Roosevelt still hasn't got the machinery going.

Plans to cut off all relief by November 1 are being changed for various localities where it is obvious that the works program will not be in full motion. This week was the deadline on approval of allotments, but the allotment board did not meet to finish its job, and the deadline apparently has been forgotten on purpose. Except in New York City, the number on relief dropped only 1 per cent in August from July. In New York City it was reduced from 340,000 to 257,000—leaving an army half the size of Washington's population on relief despite the noisy efforts of Gen. Hugh Johnson, who moved in June 26. These are only trivial details in the whole amazing story of monumental fumbling after Mrs. Roosevelt made an issue in Congress of getting his $4,880,000,000 without any strings to it.

This sad experience, as much as anything, has undermined confidence in Mr. Roosevelt's ability as an administrator. It has stimulated the curdling of public sentiment toward his whole effort and likewise toward further glorification of executive power.

But if you don't like Roosevelt for President, there is an alternative, a self-appointed one. David S. Beach, of Bridgeport, Conn., advises this office that he is known as "The World's Actuary," is Connecticut's champion hitch-hiker and "is the only man who consistently and persistently nominated himself for the presidency."

Beach says he is the only man in the world who can pay off the tremendous national debt "using no cash or money, all to be done in ten years' time and none of our children will ever know of it."

Just the man we are all looking for.

The reason Secretary of Commerce Roper was able to make such a profound and highly documented speech on the Constitution was that he had some high-powered Administration help on it. He went to Hyde Park a few days ago and talked over his speech with President Roosevelt.

John Dickinson, Assistant Attorney General, is supposed to have helped Roper with the legal data. Dickinson, descendant of one of the Delaware signers of the Constitution, is coming up as one of the Administration's practical legal aces.

Huey Long's filibuster the closing night of Congress, which killed off a batch of eleventh-hour appropriations, has pulled Secretary of Agriculture Wallace out of a bad hole.

Wallace didn't want the widely condemned potato control act, but he couldn't fight it. It was pushed and supported by old-line Democrats and Republicans who had complained most loudly about AAA. But Wallace was afraid to speak out against it because AAA has done practically nothing for New England. Maine potato growers, and Republican politicians there, demanded this aid, and Wallace feared that if he opposed it he would be accused of favoring the South and Middle West and denying New England the benefits of New Deal regimentation.

But Huey Long's filibuster knocked out the funds which were to have been used to administer potato control, and Wallace, without looking too hard, hasn't been able to find any other funds for the purpose.

George W. Wickersham says the trouble with Roosevelt is that he tries to be everybody's friend, quoting Tennyson's "He makes no friend who never made a foe."

No doubt Mr. Roosevelt only wishes that Wickersham was right.

Potato Statute Enforcement Is Held Unlikely

Secretary Doubts Funds Will Be Available for a Check-Up.

the meeting of growers. "As long as a law is on the statute books, we must do our best to enforce it. But inasmuch as there is no money available we believe we should call in the producers and see what they want to do."

General Fund Available.

While the tax would be collected by the Internal Revenue Department, Wallace explained, the money for its collection must come from the Agriculture Department. Funds are available under the general AAA appropriation to carry out any program that might be determined under Title 1.

Another source in the Agriculture Department is proceeding exactly as though the tax and control provisions of the act had not been passed, that without funds the provisions are null.

Under the circumstances, potatoes are placed in the same class with cotton, corn, wheat and numerous other products as a "basic commodity," and as such can be handled under the provisions of the AAA act that apply to the other commodities.

Among the questions to be considered at the hearing next month, the Agriculture Department announced, will be whether the establishment of a national allotment with or without benefit payments to producers would carry out the purposes of the act. The act, however, is permissive and does not make the establishment of allotment or any other control measure mandatory.

Problems Are Outlined.

"Among other questions to be considered," the announcement continued, "is whether the exercise of the power to provide for adjustment in acreage through agreements with producers or by voluntary methods, and to provide for rental and benefit payments in connection with such agreements or other voluntary methods would carry out the purposes of the potato act.

"The possibility of the use of marketing agreements for potatoes and the diversion of potatoes from normal channels of trade, or into by-products, will also be taken into consideration."

In connection with other commodities, processing taxes are used for benefit payments. Only a few potatoes—notably those that go into the manufacture of starch and alcohol—are processed.

Among the groups fighting the potato act is the National Liberty League, which referred to it recently as "another step toward Socialism."

The AAA will hold a hearing on September 26 on the future of the corn-hog adjustment program. Because of the increasing price of corn and hogs the program may be abandoned.

Turkey Knob Case Involving Artemus Ward Place Up on Appeal.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Sept. 18.—Ten years in lower courts, the fight for the famed Turkey Knob apple orchards of 600 acres in Shenandoah County between Christian E. Gudebrod and the estate of Artemus Ward, of New York, reached its last phase yesterday before the Virginia Court of Appeals.

In 1911, Ward agreed to invest the money to buy the Strathmore and Triplett tracts in Mount Jackson and vicinity and to convey them to a corporation called the Turkey Knob Orchard Corporation. Ward was to furnish the money and Gudebrod was to manage the orchards for an agreed salary. While Ward paid cash for the capital stock, 75 per cent of the net profits each year were to be applied to the purchase for Gudebrod of one-half of the capital stock.

The orchards were operated from 1911 to 1925 by Gudebrod, when Ward claimed that the venture was a failure and the corporation was insolvent. The Circuit Court at Winchester appointed special receivers over the protest of Gudebrod, who insisted that the orchard corporation was not insolvent and that it must continue to operate until its profits could pay for his stock.

Judge Phillip Williams, in Shenandoah Circuit Court, found that the Turkey Knob Corporation was insolvent, that it owed the estate of Artemus Ward more than $500,000, that Gudebrod had no interest to continue the operations, although he was entitled to $30,000 salary and commissions, and that there was an equitable lien on the property to secure the Ward estate $330,000 and interest. Gudebrod appealed to the State Supreme Court.

The Turkey Knob Orchards, among the best producing in the Shenandoah Valley area, are now operated under a lease by Senator Harry F. Byrd and his brother, Thomas B. Byrd.

but said he knew that at least four were Democrats, including John W. Davis, 1924 Democratic presidential candidate; former Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby; former Gov. Joseph H. Ely of Massachusetts and, as a recent addition, former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri.

As for the charge that most of the committee represented "big business," Desvernine did not deny it but asserted he would not "know how to choose any committee of well-known lawyers competent in the field of constitutional law throughout the United States without choosing some lawyers who had large business interests for clients, because if a lawyer's ability in a community is recognized, he generally has some important business interest to represent."

Denies Political Tinge.

He insisted that the committee was selected without reference to political affiliation and "solely because of the recognized ability and professional competency of the members of the committee to express an opinion upon questions of constitutional law." When asked why so many outstanding professors of law in the country were omitted, he said only practising lawyers were selected.

Immediately Descernine was confronted by a series of questions as to why lawyers knowns as representatives of labor groups were not included; why Reed was named chairman of the sub-committee; who had selected the full committee and numerous similar questions, which reiterated, soon took the form of heckling.

Desvernine smiled through it all, fidgeting in his chair at times and switching from a cigar to a pipe. Occasionally he appeared annoyed.

May Intervene in Court.

Reed seemed to enjoy the emphasis placed on his connection with the Weirton Steel labor case and thought he could give as "impartial' an opinion regarding the validity of the labor relations act as any one—although he conceded that perhaps some persons, including the American Federation of Labor, might not think so.

Shouse, whose part in the occasion was not only to introduce the who lawyers, and who, consequently, was not the target for questions, intervened several times to emphasize that none of the lawyers' committee served for compensation or even received expenses; that the league's purpose was to clarify the public mind regarding New Deal measures, and that the league might seek to intervene in the actual argument of one or more of the New Deal cases before the Supreme Court.

This latter revelation he declined to discuss, except to assert it was "a possibility" which the league had under consideration. He said that in 5 or 6 cases which already have reached the court the league had been asked to take a definite part against the Government.

3 Plead Not Guilty To Fraud Charge

Former Officers of Liquor Firm Get Hearing.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Sept. 18.—Pleas of not guilty were entered today by three former officers of the Harford Pure Rye Distilleries, Inc., to charges of aiding and abetting in the misappropriation of $226,000 from the National Central Bank.

The three men—J. Edgar Richardson, Moses Haas, and J. H. Johnson—waived a hearing before United States Commissioner James K. Cullen. Their bail was renewed at $7,500 each. It was set when they were arrested early this month.

The Government charged them with complicity in the misappropriation by aiding and abetting Harry H. Hahn, former vice president and cashier of the bank.

Hahn, who with two other bank employes, is under charges, testified at the distillery's receivership hearing that he was forced to make bank funds available to the distillery for work on the plant at Havre de Grace and other expenses.

of the canal, followed immediately by a British destroyer.

Admiral Sir William Fisher, commander of the Mediterranean fleet, arrived in Alexandria aboard H. M. S. Resolution to assume first-hand direction of the great armada of more than 30 ships assembled in that port alone.

Ponsonby Quits

London, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—Lord Ponsonby tonight resigned leadership of the Labor Party in the House of Lords, because as a pacifist "I am unable to accept labor's recent decision in favor of sanctions against an aggressor in the Italo-Ethiopian conflict."

Ponsonby announced his decision in a letter to George Lansbury, leader of the labor opposition in the House of Commons, who has taken a similar stand.

The national executive committee of the Labor Party hurriedly summoned an emergency meeting tomorrow, reportedly to discuss the situation created by objection to labor's peace policy by such prominent individuals as Ponsonby, Lansbury and former Solicitor-General Sir Stafford-Cripps.

Lansbury said: "Everybody will respect Ponsonby's reasons and will know that in taking this action he is actuated by the highest motives."

Ponsonby resigned from the cabinet in 1914 when Britain declared war on Germany.

Italy's Envoys Scorn League's Plan for Peace

Rejection by Mussolini Is Viewed as Certain at Geneva.

case of an attack has been resumed, that mines are ready if it becomes necessary to close the port, already lined with metal nets to keep submarines out.

Military reserve planes are expected at Gibraltar Friday, these reports said. Today both planes and warships participated in defensive maneuvers, the planes dropping smoke bombs in simulated attack as 5 cruisers and 12 destroyers churned the waters and garrison troops maneuvered near the city. More than 40 ships have reached Gibraltar, it was said.

The Geneva peace plan, which was handed both to Baron Pompeo Aloisi, of Italy, and Tekla Hawariat, representing Ethiopia, was described by League officials as "the framework of a plan" for technical assistance of Ethiopia in administrative, economic, financial and social reform.

It was understood Italy would be allotted the privilege of developing Ethiopia economically and financially, although Ethiopia's political independence would be preserved.

The Italian spokesman compared the scheme to "offering us $500,000 for a house we think worth $10,000,000."

Leaves Tomorrow.

Aloisi, it was understood, would depart tomorrow for Rome to lay the plan before Il Duce. If Mussolini finally rejects it, the League Council must decide whether it will proceed under Article XV of the covenant.

The British naval movements were explained at London as precautionary. Yet only a few battleships and cruisers remain in home waters and reports from Gibraltar said the mighty battleship Nelson, flagship of the fleet, probably would arrive there soon. Aboard is Admiral Sir Roger Backhouse, the fleet commander.

The admiralty did not confirm the report about the Nelson. Nevertheless, admiralty statements and Gibraltar reports indicated all but two of the 54 destroyers, comprising six squadrons, and practically all available battle cruisers, cruisers, submarines, minelayers, minesweepers and sloops have been arrayed in powerful lines at Gibraltar and at the Suez end of the Mediterranean Sea.

Whitehall sources said this unprecedented display of force distinctly was not provocative, but informed observers were represented as feeling it could not help but impress Italy.

Significant maneuvers continued in the vicinity of the Suez Canal and reports via Exchange Telegraph from Cairo said a British destroyer had followed two Italian submarines through that vital waterway.

Directs Armada.

Admiral Sir William Fisher, commander of the Mediterranean fleet, arrived in Alexandria, Egypt, aboard the H. M. S. Resolution to direct the armada of more than 30 ships off that port.

British airplanes droned in exercises tonight off the island of Malta and Valletta was plunged in darkness except for searchlights that picked out "invading" planes which "attacked" from the aircraft carrier Courageous.

Boom defenses have been swung across both Malta and Gibraltar harbors.

Two destroyer flotillas, which reached Gibraltar only yesterday with home fleet cruisers, steamed away for an undisclosed destination today.

As for the Italian war chest, the total of the loan that was authorized today was not disclosed. But it was believed in financial circles to be tremendous.

New and higher taxes to balance the year's budget were voted, too, and additional economic measures were authorized in the event Gibraltar and the Suez are closed to Italy.

Another cabinet session was called for Saurday.

Natives Ready for War

Natives along the eastern coast of Africa stand ready to join the Ethiopians in event of a war with Italy, R. L. Jones, Seventh Day Adventist missionary, who spent seven years in Africa, said yesterday during a conference with leaders of the denomination in Takoma Park.

Dr. Jones sailed from Africa early in August, leaving his post as principal of Gitwe Mission Training School in Belgian Congo. He is on furlough.

Among the natives the war spirit is evident, asserted Dr. Jones. From Belgian Congo through the Tanganiki country, the Kenya Colony, Arabia, French and English Somaliland and Port Said the urge to fight the Italians runs high, according to the educator's report, submitted at Takoma Park.

Rome 'Told' to Report

Rome, Sept. 18 (A.P.).—A Government spokesman said tonight the report of the Geneva committee of five on the Italo-Ethiopian situation would be referred to the council for consideration, but that Italy does not regard it as a basis for discussion.

From what information has been received here in regard to the report, he continued, there is no occasion for Italy to change her attitude of pessimism and skepticism. He denied a report Baron Pompeo Aloisi, head of the delegation at Geneva, was coming to Rome tomorrow for talks with Musslini.

Post Contest's Winners Meet At American U.

4 Freshmen Are Welcomed on Campus by Victors of Last Year.

Six scholarship winners met on the American University campus yesterday to renew friendships formed last spring at finals in which four of them, now freshmen, won top prizes in The Washington Post Scholarship Competition.

The four newcomers, each the winner of tuition at American for four years, included two Western High honor graduates of last June, Nellie S. Strong and William Ashby Jump, and two winners from northern Maryland, Virginia Heintz, of Cumberland, and Odell Rosen, of Hancock. They were greeted by Margaret Hill, of Hampstead, Md., and Raymond Wrenn, of Herndon, Va., who won similar prizes in the first Post competition finals at American in May, 1934, and are now starting their second year.

Since their arrival last Friday the four beginners have completed arrangements for full-study programs and have also participated in a round of freshman entertainment of dinners, teas, assemblies and trips to the Naval Observatory and Mount Vernon.

"Big sisters" and "big brothers" assigned to the four for general hospitality duties, culminating in a big sister and big brother party last night, included Miss Katherine Taylor for Miss Heintz, Miss Lucille Stalker for Miss Strong, Winthrop Wolfe for Rosen and Roland Roberts for Jump. The party last night was a general welcome by upper classmen in honor of freshmen, featuring a school play and dancing, and ending with distribution of green caps to the new boys and large green hair ribbons for the new girls, and complete instructions for their use and other freshman procedure.

Charlottesville's Finances Improve

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 18.—The reports of the fiscal committees, submitted to the council last night, indicated that all departments of the city's finances had shown improvement in the year 1934-35, although the sinking fund commission asked for an increase of $2,456.42 in the city's yearly contribution of $25,238.95 to the fund to take care of a shortage of approximately $100,000 in depreciated bonds.

Nevertheless, the sinking fund showed a cash increase of $53,350.21, with an appreciation in the value of holdings over last year of and additional $14,000.

The budget appropriation for 1934-35 was $534,869.77, of which $492,821.13 was spent, leaving a cash balance of $46,549.72. A total of $216,657.10 was collected, 82.2 per cent of the total amount collectable. The net income of the water department increased $1,077.22, and for the gas department, $2,469.41.

Five new policemen were added to the police department, one as an extra policeman.

Child Paralysis Wanes, Reports Health Service

Disease Declines Throughout Country Despite 850 New Cases.

Infantile paralysis is well on the decline throughout the country, the Public Health Service reported yesterday.

Although 850 new cases were reported by State health officials during the week ended September 14, compared with 310 for the corresponding week last year, it was said that every indication points to a steady drop with the advent of cooler weather.

The North Carolina and Virginia outbreaks, which were especially severe, have tapered off to a point where only 14 were reported in former State last week and 21 in Virginia. Washington had 9, Maryland, 7, and West Virginia, 8.

New York and Massachusetts, where infantile paralysis has raged for two months, continue to lead the country in cases reported. The former reported 285 last week, 206 of which were in New York City, while Massachusetts had 143, including 88 in Boston.

Since January 1, 7,274 cases have been reported, compared with 5,292 for the first 37 weeks of 1934.

"I am a traveling man—I always drive a USED CAR"

"I drive a car a great many miles a year. Experience has taught me that my car has got to be dependable and have the stamina to stand up under the constant daily driving that my business demands of it.

"And then, too, the cost of my transportation is a big item to me. That is why I drive a used car. The original cost is low—I drive it for a year and then trade it in for another one.

"In this way it is not necessary for me to have a lot of money tied up in my car, and at the same time I know that I have a good, dependable car."

BOYS WILL BE MEN

. . . what SORT of men?

YOUNG CHAP . . . do you remember Plutarch? WELL . . . we'll tell you about him. Plutarch was a Greek philosopher. He lived over a thousand years ago. He never even dreamed of automobiles, radios, airplanes or any of the modern wonders you take for granted today. He never even dreamed of the things that were wonders in your grandfather's time . . . or in your grandfather's grandfather's. He sported a long gray beard and wore a shining white toga. And out of his mouth came words of infinite wisdom . . . wisdom as applicable to life today as it was centuries ago, when the old Greek philosopher first achieved the glory which has never dimmed.

THERE'S JUST one remark of Plutarch's we'd like to pass on to you now . . . his other writings you'll discover later in college anyway. When asked what boys should learn, Plutarch replied, "That which they shall use as men."

DO YOU REALIZE that that is just what you're doing? Carrying your Post route day in and day out . . . establishing contacts with all sorts of people and learning to talk with them on their own ground . . . selling your product to them . . . handling money, keeping your accounts straight . . . do you know that as a Post Carrier Salesman you are unwittingly, perhaps, following Plutarch's advice?

KEEP UP the good work . . . we appreciate it. It's doing us a lot of good, of course . . . but it's doing you a great deal more. It is teaching you things which will put you one step ahead of your fellows later on . . . . when you're struggling in earnest to make your place in the sun. For you are learning "that which you shall use as men."

The Federal Diary

Registered in U. S. Patent Office.

By Morgan Baker.

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

THE dismissal of Dr. William E. Zeuch from Resettlement Administration will not become another Donovan case if the American Federation of Government Employes can help it. And, apparently, the A. F. G. E. can help it, because it was learned at national headquarters last night that Dr. Zeuch's name has never been on the A. F. G. E. membership roll.

BAKER.

"If Resettlement Lodge, No. 206, has enrolled Dr. Zeuch as a member since he was dismissed, his membership is illegal," Col. Charles I. Stengle, A. F. G. E executive assistant, declared.

Meanwhile secrecy surrounds A. F. G. E. plans of action on charges of alleged radical activities of the principal in the Donovan case, John L. Donovan, NRA, who, incidentally, is taking a leading part in the Zeuch controversy. It was reported before the Cincinnati convention that steps would be taken to "muzzle" Donovan, a special committee being appointed to handle the charges. When the committee assembled, it was surprised to learn the data in the Donovan matter were in Washington "on file at national headquarters."

Then, with the changed personnel of the AFGE executive council, the investigating committee's personnel was shifted. John P. Green, AFGE vice president and Donovan committee chairman, resigned both offices "feeling that a younger man should take over the duties." Cecil Custer, Civil Service Commission, national treasurer, has succeeded Green on the Donovan committee.

Donovan has a substantial following, concentrated almost exclusively in Resettlement Administration, NRA, FERA, AAA and a couple of other New Deal agencies. Hence, the AFGE is proceeding cautiously in its efforts to subdue the fiery NRA member.

PLANS are complete for the September dance to be given by the Civil Service Commission Athletic Association at Powhattan Springs Lodge Friday night, it is announced by David J. Williams (P), association treasurer, who is in charge of arrangements. All Government employes and their friends are invited.

Assisting Mr. Williams in the affair are R. R. Strattan, president; Miss Juanita Eickhoff, vice president; Miss Ina L. Price, secretary, and other active members.

L. B. Connell has been designated acting deputy commissioner, Alcohol Tax Unit, Internal Revenue, during the absence of Deputy Commissioner Stewart Berkshire. In the absence of both Connell and Berkshire, Dwight Avis is designated acting deputy commissioner, according to Commissioner Guy T. Helvering.

"Dynamiters" Are Poised.

Frank Dow, Assistant Commissioner of Customs, will roll the first ball at 8 p. m. today when the eight-team Dynamite Bowling League of Treasury opens its fall season at Arcadia Alleys, according to J. J. Weisbach (P), president.

League officers include E. C. Wilcox, vice president; T. L. Moffatt, secretary-treasurer, and D. H. Reichgut, official scorer. Teams and their captains are: Audicrats, E. G. Grigsby; Steam Rollers, P. D. Chipouras; Sleuths, Mr. Reichgut (temporary); Wrecking Crew, W. N. Crymes; Tornadoes, G. A. Walker; Blow Hards, J. O'Neill; Analysts, G. F. Beyer, and Duds, S. C. Shelton.

Miss Elizabeth A. Gerber returned to her desk in Homestead Division, General Land Office, this week as Mrs. Clarence Travis (F). The bride was honored at a shower given by Miss Helena M. Kenney, Mineral Division. Mr. Travis is from New Haven, Conn.

PRELIMINARY plans for a record season were made last night by the Federal Bridge League, which met at 2400 Sixteenth street northwest under direction of Karl W. Greene, Justice, president. Last season 24 teams with more than 100 players met weekly in a spirited race.

The league was organized in 1932 by a unit of the National Federation of Federal Employes to include only Federal and District employes. Last year the eligibility was extended to include Army, Navy and Marine people and wives of employes.

Luther C. Steward, N. F. F. E. president, donates a permanent trophy to the championship team, with replicas for each member of the championship group.

League leaders who will again be prominent in activities this season include Miss Mazie Buie, Treasury, secretary-treasurer; Paul G. Golden (F), Bureau of Standards, official scorer, and Isaac H. York, Treasury, former president.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go
The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.
Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

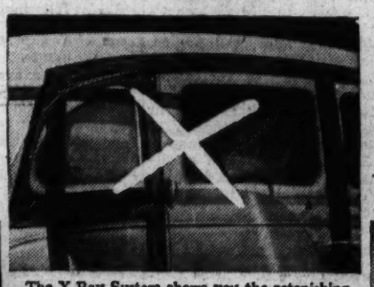
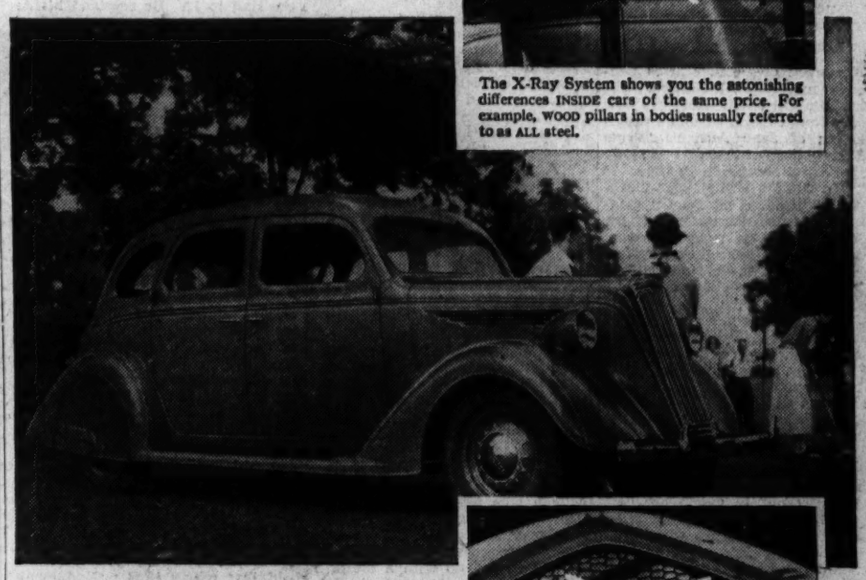
NEW X-RAY SYSTEM MAKES EVERY CAR BUYER AN AUTO EXPERT!
Reveals the surprising, hidden DIFFERENCES INSIDE the low-priced cars in fascinating, easy-to-understand pictures


The X-Ray System shows you the astonishing differences INSIDE cars of the same price. For example, WOOD pillars in bodies usually referred to as ALL steel.


IT IS NO longer necessary to take for granted the parts of a car you can't see. Or to wade through a mass of complicated figures and specifications to find out what's INSIDE. For the first time in automobile history, you can see . . . actually SEE with your own eyes . . . the amazing, hidden differences inside the low-priced cars!
The remarkable, new X-Ray System, now in use in all Nash-LaFayette showrooms, shows you in simple, easy-to-understand X-Ray pictures the vital things that most low-priced cars leave out . . . the things that high-priced cars include. And it shows you, beyond all doubt, that LaFayette alone in the lowest-price field gives you ALL of the VITAL features of engineering usually found only in cars costing hundreds of dollars more.
This is more than just the safest way to buy a low-priced car. It's a lot easier, a lot more sensible, a lot more fun! And it has already convinced hundreds of car buyers like yourself that Nash's statement, "Out to Win America on Value Alone" is a fact—not an advertising slogan. See the X-Ray System. See the new 1936 LaFayette—the biggest, roomiest car . . . the safest, best-engineered car ever offered at anywhere near the price—and you'll be convinced, too! The Nash Motors Company, Kenosha, Wis.

The X-Ray reveals that this steel body gives you only wire mesh and fabric over your head. In LaFayette alone do you see a complete, seamless ALL-STEEL body, top, sides and floor!

Early Bookings at the National Include Some of New Season's Notable Events

Attractions to Mid-November Are Announced

Miss Cornell Here Oct. 14; 'Top Hat' Fourth Week; Amusement Notes.

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

By Nelson B. Bell.

With so much trumpeting and cymbal-whanging concerning the superlative quality of artistry, visual magnificence and showmanship with which the new season of the cinema has been endowed, sight, perhaps, has been lost of the fact that a new season of the traditional theater also impends.

Although variously engaged in preparing the way for Miss Barrymore's tour in his revival of W. Somerset Maugham's "The Constant Wife," Lake Hopatconging and angling for ringside seats for himself and party of distinguished guests at the Baer-Louis fracas in New York next Tuesday night, Panjandrum Stephen E. Cochran, of the National Theater, the National Theater Players and the Academy of Stage Training in the Dramatic Arts which he founded, has eked out time enough to see to it that illumination of the National's E street marquee late this month shall not be in vain.

In truth, Mr. Cochran's concern for the historic playhouse over which he presides has been so great and his activity in its behalf so assiduous that the National Theater, the only playhouse in the National Capital that still holds aloft the flaming torch of the living drama, is solidly booked well along toward the Thanksgiving holiday.

"Blossom" Is Out.

We are, it seems, to be spared the millionth return engagement of "Blossom Time," once tentatively announced for the week of September 23, and will not be privileged to file down the aisle at the $1.50-and-up scale of prices until the week of Sunday, September 29. It is a little on the side of irony, even then, that the first attraction at the National should be a motion picture. However, that is the way the die is cast at present. Cecil B. De Mille's most recent historical spectacle, "The Crusades," will be the opening bill. This imposing picture is now in its third successful week at the Astor Theater in New York, where it also is being presented on the "road show" basis of two performances a day.

On October 7, and this would be a Monday, the National will really get into its stride with Eddie Dowling's production of "Thumbs Up," one of last season's Broadway hits, with Clark & McCullough, Paul Draper, Ray Dooley (Mrs. Dowling), Irene Bea Beasley, Al Sexton, Hugh Cameron, the Falla Sisters and scores more in posts of importance.

Following "Thumbs Up" will come one of the most distinguished engagements of the season—Katharine Cornell in Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," scheduled for the week of Monday, October 14. Miss Cornell will be supported by Florence Reed, whose revival of "The Shanghai Gesture," at the National last spring, still is fresh in the memory of Capital theatergoers; Ralph Richardson, Maurice Evans, Charles Waldron and a brilliant ensemble. Mr. Evans is making his American debut in the role of Romeo. Mail orders are already being received for this engagement.

Reserved for Mr. Gordon.

The week of October 21 is penciled in merely "Max Gordon." The attraction will be Mr. Gordon's new production of Helen Jerome's dramatization of Jane Austen's "Pride and Prejudice," if that play is ready for public presentation in time. If not, Mr. Gordon will stagger Washington with the mammoth magnificence of "The Great Waltz," the sensational musical production that was one of the wonders of New York's past season, as staged on one of Rockefeller City's most capacious rostrums. In either event, the Gordon trade-mark is fair guarantee of an earnest effort in the theater, last season's "Gather Ye Rosebuds" to the contrary, notwithstanding.

Reverting again to a Sunday opening on October 27, the National will present, for what is hoped will be an extended engagement, Herr Professor Max Reinhardt's picturization for the Warner Brothers of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," in which are cast practically the full roster of stars on the Warner Brothers-First National Burbank lots. This much-discussed picture will have its New York premiere on October 9, with many of the notables associated with its production present in person. It is possible that some, or all, of this extensive Hollywood caravan will be on hand for the Washington premiere.

Although unnamed as yet, it is expected that "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be succeeded by a big new musical production and hints are being thrown out that something of the same sort of thing may be looked forward to for Thanksgiving week. Beyond that, deponent sayeth not.

He has said quite a mouthful, at that.

Concerning certain of the players coming to town—if present bookings stay put—it is interesting to note that Miss Cornell sailed for home from Genoa, Italy, aboard the S. S. Rex, no longer ago than last Friday. She will begin rehearsals of "Romeo and Juliet" immediately upon her arrival in New York and will open the play in Baltimore with a three-day engagement beginning Thursday, October 10, prior to playing this city the week of the 14th.

Paul Draper, in "Thumbs Up," is the same extraordinary dancer who appeared early in the summer as headliner at the Earle and is a nephew of Ruth Draper, the brilliant diseuse of international renown.

Ray Dooley, in private life Mrs. Eddie Dowling, wife of the producer of "Thumbs Up," has abandoned the "baby" roles that made her famous and now pursues the no less arduous activities of an adult comedienne.

The avant courier for Mr. De Mille's "Crusades," released by Paramount, is Eddie Corcoran, due here later in the week. Mr. Corcoran's most recent achievement was encompassed in the capacity of executive director of the Variety Club Showmen's Jubilee, otherwise this year's Atlantic City Beauty Pageant, in which "Miss Pittsburgh," former five-and-ten store clerk, was named "Miss America." Mr. Corcoran's efforts were so successful that the Jubilee has been restored as an annual September fixture at the seashore city.

"Time Marches On."

Along with the possibly inadvertent announcement that "Top Hat," starring Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, is to be continued a fourth week at RKO-Keith's, comes word from Manager Hardie Meakin that this Friday (the sixth issue of "The March of Time") will be added to the bill.

This is contrary to all precedent—which, of course, means nothing. When a program is set for a run, it is the managerial habit to leave it intact, save for the substitution of new newsreels for old, until the run is ended. That doesn't go for Master Meakin.

It is felt that "The March of Time," a reel that defies comparison with any other contemporaneously before the public, is unique and deserves a public showing at the earliest possible moment upon release, regardless of surrounding circumstances. No more opportune time for this innovation could be found than the present. So many patrons are going to see "Top Hat" at repeat showings that it is the view of the management that "Time" will not suffer by being added to a bill in its fourth week.

The new issue of "The March of Time" devotes itself to the Pennsylvania "bootleg" coal mining, the CCC camps and the background of developments in Ethiopia.

So now you know.

A wire from Hollywood announces the marriage on Sunday night at Tia Juana, Mexico, of John Warburton, English film actor, and Miss Lucille Morrison, Los Angeles socialite. Ivan Lebedeff and Wera Engels, both well known on the screen, were the couple's attendants. Mr. Warburton will be remembered by Washington theatergoers as a former juvenile with the National Theater Players, thought by many to bear a startlingly close resemblance to one of the princes of the English royal family—which he decidedly did.

Tonight, "East Lynne."

The Willard Players tonight will move a step nearer last summer's record of the Roof Players in "The Drunkard" by beginning their sixth week of melodramatic merrymaking, if you can do with a bit of a paradox, on the stage of the National Press Club Auditorium, where they continue the ageless tear-jerker, "East Lynne."

The cast, of necessity, has been changed a bit since the remote evening of the play's first performance. Miss Hatfield has returned to her New York home and Master David Pritchard has been torn from the gay pursuits of Thespis by the untimely clanging of the school bell.

Those now carrying on the gentle lambasting of the revered old play include Robert G. Pitkin, Catherine Dierkin, Isham Keith, Rudulph Watson, Lucille Bartram, Forney Reese, Harriet Borden, Margaret Martin, Harry Schonrank and Ethel Hayden.

It should be noted by those impelled to attend "East Lynne" by thirst or pretzel hunger that there has been a slight readjustment of the gustatory aspects of the presentation since the inauguration of the "continental music hall" idea. It is said to result in a substantial reduction in the tariff assessed the patron.

All this is to say that the customer now is privileged to order anything he wishes from a reasonably complete menu. Even so, in the eyes of some, this arrangement may not wholly compensate for the loss of the free beer!

When Xavier Cugat, modestly known as the "tango and rumba king," brings his orchestra to the stage of the Earle Theater to headline the vaudeville portion of the bill to be inaugurated on Friday of this week, he will have with him as stellar dancers those two charming Cubans, Raul and Eva Reyes.

These two youngsters, brother and sister, are familiar favorites of patrons of the Shoreham terrace, the Waldorf in New York and other choice night spots, and last summer were delayed a day or so in opening their local engagement at the Shoreham by reason of being held in New York to be featured in that gorgeous party that marked the first docking in Manhattan of the great French liner Normandie.

They were billed on that occasion as presented "by the Waldorf-Astoria through the courtesy of the Shoreham Hotel, Washington, D. C."

Not only are they exceptional dancers, but in the bargain they are a couple of unaffected and thoroughly likable young people who are still a little bewildered by the great success that has overtaken them.

Peeling Bell Note.

Having been out in the sun a bit these last few weeks, I am beginning to know something of how a snake feels when it sheds its skin.

And I'm getting just a bit boa'd with it, if you must know.

They Star in Anniversary Film at Fox

When "Here Comes the Band" opens at Loew's Fox Theater on Friday, as chief screen feature of the bill assembled to celebrate the eighth anniversary of the opening of the house, these genial young people will be seen in the roles of foremost romantic importance. The beruffled blonde at the right, of course, is Virginia Bruce; the smiling young man, Harry Stockwell, a leading man of the naturalistic school, who adds one more to the number of the cinema's fine barytone voices. Ted Lewis and his band, Ted Healy, Nat Pendleton and Donald Cook are others of prominence in the cast.

Hollywood

By Sidney Skolsky

Hollywood, Sept. 18.

PATSY KELLY'S real name is Veronica Kelly. She was nicknamed Patsy when a youngster because she was always the Patsy.

She is exactly the same off the screen as she is on. She has the same mannerisms with her hands, the same walk, the same way of talking—and ad libbing.

She was born in Brooklyn on January 12, 1910, in the afternoon. She arrived before the doctor.

When she was 6 months old, she was moved to Manhattan. She played on the sidewalks of New York, east side and west side.

She was a wild kid. She played baseball on the boys' team, loitered about the firehouse, and was generally in mischief. It was to keep her off the streets that she was sent to Jack Blue's Dancing School. It was here that she met Ruby Keeler and started their friendship.

• • • •

She didn't have any desire to become an actress. She had been a dancing instructor at Jack Blue's for several years. Her brother wanted to be an actor and was supposed to open with Frank Fay at the Palace.

She went over to the theater to teach them a dance routine. Patsy became part of the act. Her brother became Fay's chauffeur.

Besides dancing, she did 37 minutes of talk with Frank Fay. With Fay you never know what he's going to say next. It was great training for her.

She trouped with Fay for three years. She was fired and rehired many times. He once fired her because she called him Frank. Finally, at the Palace Theater, he fired her and didn't re-hire her. Her vaudeville career began and ended at the Palace.

• • • •

SHE is 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighs 136 pounds, has brown eyes, brown hair, and a dent on her left cheek. She fell out of a window when a kid.

She came to Hollywood to play in Hal Roach comedies. She is still under contract to Roach. She is not in demand at her studio, and is getting more and more of an opportunity in feature flickers. Roach shares with her whatever money he collects over her contract salary.

She actually doesn't like crowds and tries to avoid them without putting on an act. She doesn't care to play anything and seldom has appointments. She amuses herself in gay Hollywood by going to the beach and playing "Tango," or going to a movie. She's a movie fan.

• • • •

She doesn't go to many parties and generally turns down invitations to dine out. She can't eat a meal without ketchup or chili sauce.

She smokes three packs of cigarettes a day and likes a good drink.

She doesn't see Ruby as often as she once did. However, they are still great friends. She and Frank Fay never get together, but she has only the highest admiration for him.

When she gets angry she screams and yells and you can hear her all over the house. She doesn't get angry often. She is a good-natured person. She cracks her knuckles when she's nervous.

She doesn't study the script and memorize her lines. She used to do this when she started in flickers. Then she'd come on the set and be told that the part had been rewritten and she'd have to learn new lines. It was just like studying the wrong script.

• • • •

SHE likes to ad lib and many of these quick remarks have given her her best scenes. Some directors will allow her to ad lib, others insist that she stick to the script. She doesn't argue. She does as she is told.

Clothes don't interest her. When she needs a dress or sees an exceptionally fine gown, she'll purchase it. She claims she doesn't look well even when she's all dressed up, and that buying clothes is a waste of money for her. She seldom wears a hat.

She reads a paper in bed. She is especially fond of poetry. Her favorite poets are Edna St. Vincent Millay and Dorothy Parker.

• • • •

It takes her at least an hour to wake up after she gets out of bed in the morning. She goes about practically asleep. She has taken a shower with her shoes on.

She is well liked by all the players. She insists she's one gal who's safe in the flicker business, for even the beautiful actresses can't be jealous of her. She's not in their racket.

Culbertson on Bridge

The Lottery.

Lottery games have been much in the public mind recently. In spite of prohibition, millions of dollars are being collected annually by various sweepstakes organized in foreign countries.

There is an important investigation in New York of the policy racket, which is a form of lottery, where poor fish of all colors are trimmed at odds so strong against them as to make any mathematician gasp for breath.

Mrs. Oliver Harriman, together with many women's organizations, is trying to divert some of these millions of dollars from the cesspools of the American gambling underworld into the worthier cause of charity. Judicial decisions have held that where skill or judgment is exercised, as in the case of bridge there can be no lottery or gaming. But in the case of pure lottery its legality is doubtful even when applied to charities. A test case in the Federal courts will decide whether a lottery run purely for charity is legal or not.

The word "lottery" has no definite significance. Legally it is applied to games of chance or determining prizes by lot. Way back in Biblical days lots were drawn, and when Rome was at its height Heliogabalus ran a lottery in which the prize was either a golden vase or six flies. The go-getting salesmen of the sixteenth century Italian republics incorporated the lottery principle in the sale of their merchandise and later lotteries became popular as an aid to governmental finance. But the financial drain among the poor became apparent even to the money-grabbing governments, and about 100 years ago lotteries were suppressed everywhere except in Holland, Spain, Italy and Denmark, where they still flourish.

In the United States the first national lottery was held in 1776 and most States legalized it for the purpose of reducing taxes or of securing public buildings, but here also the government later forbade the use of the mails for its promotion.

To any student of gambling it is apparent that, with or without prohibition, lotteries and other forms of vicious gambling always have flourished. Mathematicians can shout until they are blue in the face that a lottery is a snare and a delusion, and that anyone playing it is doomed to lose, which is perfectly true. The fact remains that lotteries cater to an irresistible emotion, hope, which springs eternal. The more abject the situation of the person the blinder the hope. One who invests in a lottery ticket carries a big chunk of hope in his vest pocket, mathematics or no mathematics.

It is this psychological factor that has, through the ages, defeated the severest prohibition. The question is, shall we allow the underworld to collect yearly a tribute of hundreds of millions of dollars which, in spite of repeal, still renders them so powerful, or shall we face the nasty mess squarely and eliminate the more vicious abuses and at least give the sucker a better mathematical break?

The example of France possibly points the way to a solution. All gambling games are legalized and controlled by the State, which collects the "kitty" for charity, while lotteries are strictly prohibited except for charities and fine arts.

The Unluckiest Hand.

Sometimes bridge is at best a lottery. To prove that you never can be sure of anything, here is the unluckiest hand I ever saw,

South thought he was safe when he played the hand at six spades redoubled. He had 12 seemingly sure trump tricks. But West opened the queen of diamonds and East took the ace and led back a club. What could South do? Ruffing with the ace would set up West's king and ruffing low would allow West to overruff. South was set one trick and I deeply sympathize with him.

School Patrons In 'Strike' Call Parley Tonight

To Weigh Next Action as Board Rejects Nice's Peace Plans.

By the Associated Press.

Frostburg, Md., Sept. 18.—Patrons of Beall Grammar School will meet tomorrow night to consider further action in their "strike" against the transfer of fourth, fifth and sixth grade pupils to the Hill Street School.

They indicated they would keep their children out of school until they were granted their demands that the pupils be permitted to continue attending Beall or that lunch and transportation to the other school be furnished them.

Meanwhile, the Allegany County board of education indicated it would not comply with Gov. Nice's request that it rescind its action transferring the pupils.

The Governor made this request yesterday after he received a delegation of parents in Baltimore. He offered several methods of easing the situation.

The school board replied, however, it would stand on its action, which it said was taken to relieve overcrowding.

On The Air Today

Today in radio is made significant by the return of the Atwater Kent hour for another season. Tonight's premiere, with Jessica Dragonette as guest soloist, marks the tenth anniversary of Atwater Kent on the air. And it also is the tenth anniversary in radio for Miss Dragonette.

Those early days will be relived for the young lyric soprano when she sings "Indian Love Call"—the first song she sang on the air when she made her bow with Roxy's Gang early in the fall of 1925. She will sing, too, "Meditation," from Thais; the Russian "Dark Eyes," "Some Day," from the "Vagabond King," and "Alice Blue Gown."

For this year's series William Daly has been selected as orchestra conductor. Mr. Daly will feature "Drums in My Heart," "Top Hat," "Smilin' Through" and "Malaguena," by Moszkowski tonight, WJSV, at 7:30 o'clock.

• • • •

WJSV has the distinction of presenting a second premiere tonight at 8:30 when "World Peaceways" is presented, with a goal of stimulating public interest in the ideal of world peace. The program is sponsored by E. R. Squibb & Sons, which company announces that "American Peaceways" is in line with a policy of long standing of devoting effort to educational programs. Musical entertainment will be provided by Howard Barlow's orchestra, with guest artists from the ranks of the country's best. Speakers include Senator Borah (tonight), Senator Nye, Alfred E. Smith, Dr. Glenn Frank and William E. Green. Prominent authors will contribute original dramatic scripts for each broadcast. Lucrezia Bori is soloist tonight.

• • • •

Lee Tracy, heard and seen infrequently these days, does a scene from his success, "Blessed Event," in the Vallee hour tonight, WRC, at 7. Other guest stars are Tim and Irene, with a special preview of "Venus in Silk," which comes soon to Broadway as a music show.

• • • •

Vladimir Brenner, former pianist to the Czar, is soloist with the N. B. C. Symphony Orchestra, WMAL, at 9, playing Rachmaninoff's second concerto for piano and orchestra . . . Homely music and philosophy will be presented Thursday nights by Lewis J. Lewis, WOL, at 11:45 . . . "Just Plain Bill" begins its fourth year on the airways, WJSV, 10:45 a. m. . . . Sponsor's commercials are promised on a new low wordage basis when the Baer-Louis fight is broadcast.

• • • •

George Gershwin, Mildred Bailey and Ray Knight are guests of Paul Whiteman in the Music Hall, WRC, at 9, and it will be very nice to have the Bailey voice with the Whiteman orchestra once again . . .

Truly People's Counsel.

It is a tribute to William A. Roberts' community spirit that his service as people's counsel before the Public Utilities Commission has been supplemented by self-imposed duties affecting the welfare of lowly citizens in distress. With patience that is too often a neglected virtue in public officials, Mr. Roberts has listened to the complaints of numerous individuals swindled of their wages. In some cases he has been able to effect settlements, but not being satisfied with these non-official activities in behalf of disconsolate victims, he proposes enactment of a new law.

Whether or not the people's counsel has evolved the best solution for wage swindling is a matter of opinion. He would make it a criminal offense to withhold wages fraudulently or without sufficient reason. Because of the prevalence of disputes in cases of this kind, resort to the criminal courts does not appear to be an ideal solution. Further study may bring to light other methods that would be less drastic and equally effective. Switzerland, for example, handles some of these problems through a system of domestic relations courts in which procedure is simple and costs are small.

Mr. Roberts would be the first to agree that the important thing is to afford an effective remedy to domestic servants and other employes who are being cheated of their wages. Regardless of whether his or some other plan is adopted, he deserves the thanks of the community for giving his attention to problems of this sort, in addition to his regular duties.

The Dark Side.

Exclusive of processing taxes, tax collections for the first 2½ months of the present fiscal year have been well above the amounts received during the same period a year ago. These increases offer most encouraging evidence of the country's growing ability to solve the budgetary problems as business recovery creates new sources of taxable income.

Unfortunately expenditures are also rising, at a rate that far outstrips additions to revenue receipts. The deficit incurred since the beginning of July was close to $752,000,000 on September 14, as compared with $495,000,000 on the corresponding date in 1934. The result is an addition to the Federal debt of $262,000,000, with more borrowing in immediate prospect.

So long as spending continues to outstrip income, the public will not be disposed to look for the bright lining to the cloud of suspicion and distrust which now darkens the financial outlook. The recent unexpected decline in quotations on long-term Government bonds is a clear warning of the growing unwillingness of banks and institutional investors to add to already excessive holdings of such securities. Each time a "sinking spell" of this sort occurs, the Treasury's chances of financing its uncovered expenditures by new offerings of long-term issues are further impaired.

The ability of the Government to obtain needed funds for short periods of time is not questioned. However, the growing fear that long-term obligations may depreciate in value will ultimately extend to embrace all issues, if the spending program continues on a scale that nullifies the increases in returns from taxation.

Time, Please.

Although seven centuries have elapsed since the first clocks were introduced, it is not until now that one has been invented for which its maker claims unvarying perfection. This clock, to be presented to Greenwich Observatory at London, is almost a small industry in itself. It will be manned by three sets of machinery, one termed the "master" and its two subordinate mechanisms called "slaves." In order to maintain its claim of accuracy in not varying as much as a second a year, it will have to be kept in a strictly even temperature.

Styles in clocks have varied with everything else until they are now as ornamental as utilitarian. The stately but ugly grandfather clocks, which used to grace or disgrace every hallway, have given way to compact modern or modernistic timekeepers. Bland-faced alarm clocks are not works of art by any means. But they are a great deal more pleasant to look at than a boss' irate frown when one is tardy. The thick gold watches suspended from cloisonne fleurs-de-lis went the way of the stiff shirt waists which they adorned. Feminine watches are as infinitesimal and decorative now as any other piece of jewelry.

This new clock, though much is claimed for it, will not be the most unique or famous one in the world. For it will have to compete with the Hipps clock at Neuchatel; the Hobrecht clock made at Strasbourg in 1589, which is still ticking, and the mechanical clock at Venice, where two life-sized figures at the top of a tower strike the hours. And last, but certainly not least, the Greenwich Observatory timepiece has a strong competitor in every single watch that reposes on an individual's arm or in his pocket today. For it will be a long time before any man will admit that his watch is not the most accurate in the world.

Boring From Within.

Constitution Day brought forth a medley of jangling opinions that drifted far from the Constitution itself. Out of this welter of partisan oratory, however, two lines of thought emerge with some distinctness. The Administration, using Secretary Roper as spokesman, made a cogent appeal for extension of the basic law, by amendment if necessary, to safeguard the recovery and reform measures of the New Deal. The opposition, headed by former President Hoover, emphasized the fundamental importance of the Bill of Rights, drawing on his wide experience of social tumult to point out that: "Liberty never dies from direct attack."

None of the many speeches showed any hostility toward the Constitution itself. That fact is worthy of emphasis, for it indicates that the country will be saved the disaster of having the fundamental law made a political issue. The point of disagreement is whether or not the so-called recovery program is insidiously disintegrating constitutional safeguards. No one is likely to challenge Secretary Roper's view of the Constitution "as a living mechanism and not as a dead tool." But that does not answer Mr. Hoover's reminder that: "Liberty dies from encroachment upon and disregard of its safeguards."

Everything Mr. Roper said about changing instrumentalities of government in conformity with social and economic evolution was self-evident. Indeed, this thought had been expressed earlier in the day by Mr. Hoover. Noting that "we have amended the Constitution many times in the past century to meet the problems of growing civilization," he predicted that "we will no doubt do so many times again." Obviously there is no serious question as to whether the Constitution should continue to grow along with changing conditions and concepts.

The real issue arises, however, over the nature of the changes to be made. That the basic law is flexible and that a national emergency arose does not adequately explain the progressive regimentation of agriculture, the haphazard competition of the Government with private enterprises, the usurpation by the Executive of legislative powers, nor the encroachment upon the functions of local government through the agency of profligate spending programs. It is not the idea of modifying the Constitution that arouses increasing opposition, but the possible disintegration of the American governmental system within a framework of ostensible constitutional observance.

Emphasis must be shifted, therefore, from oratorical generalities to specific undertakings. Secretary Roper was right in comparing the President's attitude on the flexibility of the Constitution with that of Lincoln. What he omitted was the devastating contrast between saving the Union in time of civil war and sap-headed boondoggling in time of peace. To save a nation from destruction, law may well be set aside, as the Constitution itself recognizes. But there is no rational analogy between such emergencies and the payment of bounties to farmers to raise their commodity prices to "parity."

Virtually all of the New Deal legislation now challenged as unconstitutional was initiated under the pressure of economic distress. But instead of loosening its grip as recovery progresses, the Administration talks of a "breathing spell" and continues to tighten its control over the lives and destiny of the people. It is this tendency which gives rise to serious apprehension that we are unwittingly drifting toward unintentional dictatorship. It is this tendency which made Constitution Day this year a matter of far more than formal observance.

Expeditious Legal Tests.

Dismissal of James W. Carter's petition for a temporary injunction restraining the Government from enforcement of the Guffey coal act may be easily misinterpreted. The public is looking eagerly for judicial decisions that will finally remove present uncertainty regarding several New Deal measures. When Judge O'Donoghue refused to issue an injunction, therefore, the inclination was to chalk up round one in favor of the Administration.

As a matter of fact, the court merely refused to analyze the case on its merits at this time. It concurred in the argument of Assistant Attorney General Dickinson that the petition was premature, since the tax provided for in the act has not been levied and the petitioner could show no evidence of injury. After the Guffey act becomes effective a similar petition for a permanent restraining order will be heard on its merits. The court will then be able to pass judgment upon a law in operation instead of trying to determine an individual's rights from hypothetical contentions.

Dr. Dickinson's plea for dismissal of this petition does not mean, however, that the Administration seeks to postpone the test. He specifically pledged the Department of Justice not to attempt to retard adjudication of these vital issues when they can be properly laid before the courts on their merits. Obviously premature judgment, before the basic elements of the case can be unmistakably outlined, is no solution. Desirable as it is to secure an early test of questionable statutes, there can be no reasonable dissent from this viewpoint.

It is highly important, moreover, that a suitable test case be chosen. As in a number of other pending suits, the basic issue lies in the extent to which Congress may control industry through the taxing power. The Supreme Court's attitude toward that question may be even more important than the Schechter case opinion. From the viewpoint of the public as well as that of the Administration, therefore, the desirability of presenting this central issue in clear-cut and unequivocal form becomes readily apparent.

The attempt to bring about expeditious legal tests of experimental legislation would defeat its own purpose if it should result in a series of decisions on ancillary points.

This week wheat prices have been advancing by leaps and bounds, cotton has joined the upward movement, and export quotations for copper have also risen. These concerted increases in prices of commodities which are in great demand whenever wars threaten would hardly have been so sudden or so pronounced had it not been for the extremely pessimistic tone of European dispatches.

To be sure rumors of war are not solely or even primarily responsible for the sharp rise in wheat prices. That is largely due to reports that a devastating drouth has virtually eliminated Argentina as a wheat exporter in coming months.

Similarly the improved outlook for cotton is partly the result of AAA rulings regarding loans and benefit payments, while a growing demand for copper has been in evidence for some time. Nevertheless, the stronger buying demand for these basic commodities itself requires explanation. It is reasonably certain that preparation for war and speculative buying in anticipation of war have played a large part in the current market upturn. Certainly the war scare accounts for the boom in munitions stocks during the present week.

Senator Nye and his colleagues who virtually forced the President, against the wishes of the State Department, to sign the "mandatory" neutrality resolution, ought to be chastened by a study of market behavior. It shows clearly that a mandatory embargo upon all exports of arms, munitions and implements of war to belligerents is not a means of keeping this country free from entanglements.

Shipments of all sorts of raw materials are as indispensable to the conduct of modern warfare as guns and explosives. Indeed European nations are not as dependent upon the outside world for finished implements of destruction as they are for basic raw materials, needed for the provisioning and clothing of the armed forces and the civilian population, and for the domestic manufacture of munitions.

Consequently a so-called "neutrality" policy that is content merely to place embargoes upon the export of arms, ammunition or implements of war is a singularly superficial and ineffectual method of trying to aid the cause of world peace. Moreover, the feverish trading in "war stocks" shows that the public doubts the ability of the Government to prevent the manufacture and sale of arms and munitions to belligerents under the licensing system contemplated by the Pittman resolution. In view of the manifold opportunities for evading an embargo, Congress should have realized that more time and a great deal of money are needed to develop an adequate system of control.

The extent to which American producers and exporters profit by a war in Europe, or even the prospect of a war, will measure the completeness of our failure to remain aloof from the conflict by simply refusing to sell munitions to the principal combatants. International trade is too complicated and the economic activities of peace and war times are too inextricably intertwined to permit a trading nation to isolate itself from a major world conflict.

The provincial, unrealistic conception of the role of the neutral held by Senator Nye and his colleagues will not keep the country out of war. It merely leaves the country free to profit surreptitiously and often unwittingly from warfare, while absolving it from the obligation to co-operate with other nations in constructive efforts to prevent war.

Football And Mothers.

From the Omaha World-Herald.

Football coaches probably never fully realize what they do to mothers. It is better so.

For mother doesn't want to be a spoil-sport, nor does she want her son to be a sissy. But she can't contemplate, with calm, the possibility of his coming home some night with a broken arm, or having his facial contours marred by a broken nose. She's been told all the statistics about the safety of the game, the few seconds that are actually given over to the shock of body meeting body, and the care taken in physical preparation for the rough play. She smiles assent, but just the same she doesn't like it. She may go out and cheer and lose her head in wild enthusiasm over a thrilling game, but always there's a tiny seed of fear in her heart that her son may be hurt.

Football is a grand game. But while the stands cheer for the lads out on the field, fighting so heroically to advance the ball, this department raises a minor cheer for the mothers of the lads, the mothers who are cheering and smiling as play follows play, even while they are fighting a secret fear that the son out there may be hurt.

In his Nurnberg speech, the Reichsfuehrer charged that Memel "tortures Germans only because they are members of the German nation and because they want to remain Germans." That is very different from Herr Hitler's course: He tortures German Jews only because they are members of the German nation and because they want to remain Germans."

Dictatorial Bureaucracy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If the people of the United States believe our country is really a democracy at the present time, they are mistaken. It is a democracy in form and in theory, but in practice it has become a dictatorial bureaucracy.

Cabinet officials are deep in politics, offering jobs to keep their party in power. Relief, doles, jobs and even money are now used to keep the reins of Government in the hands of some who are undemocratic and un-American.

Democracy cannot live when partisanship, demagoguery and mortgaging the future are the conditions and methods of those sworn to carry out the Constitution and keep burning the sacred fires of liberty on the blood-bought altar of freedom. Nothing is safe or secure when all sane policies of economics and representative government are cast aside and the slogan becomes: "Anything will do; anything for my party to win." The people had better get their eyes open.

BUFORD S. CROSS.
Great Cacapon, W. Va., Sept. 17.

Conn. Ave. Buses.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The new bus line on Connecticut avenue is in operation. After using it, I make this criticism:

1. Overcrowding. I stood swinging to a post back of the motorman from 4900 Connecticut avenue to Fifteenth and I streets. It was the most uncomfortable ride I have had in years. I have been a resident of Chevy Chase for over two years and that never occurred on the street cars. I hope the company will remedy this condition.

2. Overworked motormen. On the street cars I could always depend upon the conductor to let me off at the right place. As my eyesight is defective, this was a great accommodation. With one man to do everything, it is unreasonable to expect him to be able to remember where passengers wish to alight. Yesterday, after telling the motorman my sight was defective and that I was dependent upon him, he took me two blocks beyond where I wanted to get off.

3. Increased danger to pedestrians. I see that a member of the P. U. C. congratulates motorists upon the removal of markers on the safety zones. Did it ever occur to this official that these safety zones and loading platforms were a source of protection to the pedestrian? The block between 4900 and 5000 on Connecticut avenue is notoriously dangerous. Delayed by a late start in the morning and eager for dinner in the evening, motorists speed along this block regardless of regulations. By watching his chance and taking some risk, the pedestrian could make a safety zone and thus have what the President calls a "breathing spell." Now he has none. He must make the other curb or die.

The attention of traffic directors and the Police Department has been called to this dangerous crossing repeatedly. Now it is more dangerous than ever.

A. H. THOMPSON.
Washington, Sept. 17.

To End The Controversy On Huey Long.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Should a halo be placed around a person merely because he has passed on to the Great Beyond? Some of your readers seem to think that death can efface the wrongs done by the late Huey P. Long. Do they forget the wake of violence and plunder left by his usurpation of the constitutional rights of his fellow citizens, his utter disregard for the ideals Americans have given their lives to establish and maintain? They claim that it is cowardly to criticize a fallen foe. Have they forgotten so soon the severe criticism Senator Long drew from every side while he lived?

It is alarming to note the number of people who are upholding Huey Long. There was reason for those who sought political favors or sought to escape Long's demagogic punishment to give him lip service, but now that the excuse is gone, what is the motive? Can there be many real Americans who are so uninformed of Huey Long's methods and his real ambitions and aims that they are willing to uphold him? If so, true Americanism is in a state of decay.

JOHN WARRINGTON.
Washington, Sept. 17.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Surprise is evidenced by various Post readers that there should be an honest appraisal of the character and life of the late Senator Huey P. Long. Some of this surprise, genuine or not, seems positively pained. And it leads me to believe that numerous sentimentalists are preparing the martyr's crown. If The Post and Westbrook Pegler can do nothing else, they may write the facts as we know them—unfavorable as well as favorable—and let history take care of Huey Long.

Surely it is not unfair to mention certain facts, generally known, about the late Senator. There is no need to pretend, merely because death has struck, that the Senator was more sinned against than sinning, and that perhaps after all he wasn't such a bad fellow. This is hardly "challenging a fallen foe."

The plain, unvarnished truth is what is needed at such times, and it has been spoken by your newspaper and by Mr. Pegler.

FRANK FORD BURNET.
Washington, Sept. 17.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post and Mr. Pegler should be commended rather than criticized for unmasking political freaks, and Huey Long certainly was one of them. His assassination is to be deplored, no matter what side you are on, and one cannot but sympathize with those who feel a personal loss at his passing. But every politician is in the public eye, and as such cannot escape publicity, be he dead or alive.

Huey Long started something his death alone cannot stop. It may be checked, but time alone will tell how much damage already has been wrought. Without, I hope, realizing it himself, he was fomenting a revolution. There are already enough reds in this country whose motto is: "What's yours is mine," and all they needed was a little moral support. This Huey Long gave them, and with some of the authority that goes with a high public office. It is irrelevant that Long wanted to go about it in a more peaceful way than the Communist.

Under the Constitution we all have a right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That means our own, not someone else's. "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's property" is one of the Ten Commandments, but to believe in that, I suppose, is just as old-fashioned as to believe in the Constitution. H. R.
Takoma Park, Md.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In all my experience of life in the raw, I never read or heard of such savage attacks on a man who was assassinated and not yet in his grave, as by your man Pegler in two of your issues of last week.

I can not understand why any reputable paper would publish such articles. Decency was certainly outraged and if I were in the author's place I would be ashamed of myself. ROBERT L. JAYNES.
Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 16.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Hate, envy and fear seem to be the cause of most of our troubles today. There seems to be a lot of personal dislike and bitterness in your columns regarding the murder of the late Senator Long. Your columnist seems bent on stirring up 70-year-old ashes of bitterness and hatred, which are best forgotten.

We need more fighters like the late Senator to oust the grafters and politicians and give the average person a square deal. C. B. L.

Liquor And Accidents.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: And now comes the "repeal associates" to tell us that drunken driving is decreasing under the benign influence of repeal. These same repealists finally convinced a gullible people that more people were drinking under prohibition and to repeal the eighteenth amendment they would drink less and drive more carefully. Statistics fail to carry out their claims, but we certainly have given the liquor interests reason to conclude we lack intelligence.

Here is the report of Theron Wendell Kilmer, M. D., police surgeon, of Hempstead, N. Y., a member of the International Convention of the Association of Chiefs of Police.

In Nassau County, New York, official figures show an increase of nearly 300 per cent in accidents attributable to intoxication.

Official figures from other cities show the following respective increases in drunken driver arrests since repeal:

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I write to tell you that I very much enjoy the broadcasting under the auspices of The Post, especially the summary of the news at 10 p. m. by Mr. Hull.

The Post Impressionist

The New-Old Utopians.

Post Office, Thursday.

ALL amateur wonder-lovers and most professional anthropologists will have a few fresh questions for debate this autumn.

Who found the "new" people of Papua: Jack Hides, this year—or M. J. Lehay, three years ago? And are the new people an old tribe that had been long lost—or an old tribe that, until Hides or the Lehays stumbled over them, had never been known anywhere outside their present almost inaccessible abode?

Some rather vague reports of the Papuan romance, which Rider Haggard might have written, struggled to America, out of the wild New Guinea hinterland, in the late summer. Now the mails from Australia bring details. And, as hot upon those details as was Arctic Peary upon the announcement of Arctic Cook, there arrive rival claims to the discovery.

Jack Hides is a British civil-service man, an assistant resident magistrate at Port Moresby, who loves the bush. Along about last January, he, with a few followers, started upon an eight-months' exploration into the southern quarter of New Guinea. On his return he declared the existence, southward from Mount Hagen, of these denizens of Papua, who, says he, call themselves something which sounds like "Tari Furora."

Far beyond the land where the last trails fade into jungle, he had scaled limestone cliffs 7,000 feet in height and completely circling a domain unmarked on any map. Uncertain of its extent, he nevertheless noted that it was composed of richly alluvial basins. Its inhabitants he estimates at 100,000.

They differ from any Papuans hitherto known: brown-eyed, yet "light in hue," little fellows "evincing Asiatic characteristics. They have "mops of fuzzy hair, finely molded features, high cheekbones."

Every acre of their land was under cultivation, tilled with wooden spades, but tilled well. There are no villages, merely a series of "park-like farms" hedged by croton and poplars, and each family dwells on and lives off its own farm. "At the end of each farm," according to a Canberra correspondent of the London Times, who interviewed Hides, runs "a contour drain between 8 and 10 feet deep."

Hides noted, moreover, that, unlike the other natives of New Guinea, these go in for reforestation.

Apparently the explorer found out little about the Tari Furoras' form of government. They do seem to have a "chief;" he told the explorers, in pantomime, that his people lived in plenty, but, though he was at first friendly, he refused to provide food for the famished visitors, made it clear that tourists were a novelty—and an unwelcome one. A religion there seemed to be. Hospitality, however, wasn't included in its list of virtues—probably because there had never previously appeared among these people any stranger upon whom to exercise it.

And so—who are they?

In 1932, a prospector, M. J. Lehay, penetrated a portion of the mandated territory north of Papua theretofore believed to be uninhabited, and found a population of about 200,000 natives. These possessed some characteristics like those of the Tari Furora folk, and one theory is that they are identical. Mr. Lehay is now en route for London to hand the Royal Geographical Society certain photographs in support of this contention. He told a Melbourne correspondent that "light-skinned natives are common to many (New Guinea) tribes, their color being due to faulty pigmentation."

Well, Mr. Hides isn't having any of that!

His find, he points out, was made at a safe distance from Mr. Lehay's. The Tari Furoras are Hides' very own: "An entirely new race," or, anyhow, the last remnant of some distinct lowland tribe, which, fleeing from enemies long ago, "escaped up the limestone cliffs, settled in the fertile valleys, multiplied and, secure from molestation, became a self-contained community."

These are the grounds whereon this winter's anthropological war will be fought. It should be a merry war, and the Post-Impressionist doesn't propose to take up either of its causes.

For, whichever side wins, romance will remain uninjured. Nothing short of an earthquake is going to destroy those cliffs and, whether the people they shelter are sui generis or cousins to the men of lower levels, there they live—where nobody guessed that anybody existed.

Lehay's discovery added, at a blow, 200,000 people to that general region. Hides' discovery adds 100,000 more. And yet mankind is in the lazy habit of asserting that our world is a thrice-read volume; that there is no fresh page to be found between its worn covers; that the ancient and honorable profession of the explorer has pretty nearly perished!

Fair Enough

So What?

IN A commendable effort to impress defendants with the messy reality of death on the highways certain judges have been passing out among erring motorists copies of a bloody essay by J. C. Furnas, taken from the Reader's Digest. It is a gruesome tract, sparing neither blood nor the splintered ends of live bones, which even a county coroner or the janitor of an autopsy room could not read without some tremors.

The hope of the learned jurists is that those who have shuddered their way from cover to cover will get religion, so to speak, and resolve to sin no more, but always wait for the light to change, give over promptly, stay in line when in doubt and keep their speed down to 35 miles an hour.

The experiment is worth trying, but experience suggests that its deterrent effect will not amount to much. This would be so even if the newspapers, which have always observed a queasy delicacy in handling the details of tragedies on the streets and highways, were to join the movement and sacrifice all their time-honored euphemisms for terrifying realism. Nothing can control the bad driver but to keep him off the road, and so many of the motorists in the land are bad drivers that to rule them off would be to inflict great loss on the automobile industry in all its branches. The campaign to save human life will never be carried to that extreme.

• • • •

IN THE past, in certain States, judges have condemned bad drivers to visit the morgues and hospitals, have caused skull-and-cross-bone signs to be erected at spots where people were killed and even built scaffolds along the roads on which wrecked cars were mounted as reminders. These experiments, recalling the old rural practice of tying the dead hen to the collar of the chicken-killing dog in an effort to correct him, have had about the same net result. The dog soon forgets, and the dangerous driver backslides.

In fact, the requirements which must be met for permission to drive an automobile are so lenient, even in the severest States, that most of the bad drivers don't even know they are bad. The majority of them are dangerous only because they are too stupid to realize the dangers which they create or too lazy to kick the brake and turn the steering wheel five degrees.

And, anyway, intimidation is a hopeless job in a world which wants to go to war again only 17 years after a war in which 5,000,000 men were killed and God alone knows how many millions were reduced to limping, misshapen salvage jobs. The post-war literature all attempted to do on a tremendous scale what Mr. Furnas has tried to do with his gory little composition on the sufferings of men and women who lie mangled at the roadside at night, waiting for the wreckers to extricate them and the doctors to stab them with their blessed hypodermics. The war stories had realism, too.

THEY told of horrid objects which had been men at dawn lying in the mud a few hours later, swollen, dismembered and with the flies already on them. No war in history ever got such a bad press afterward as the Big One, for it seemed as though every man who came back wrote a book in his native language, and each tried to be more appalling than the others. Yet the next generation took it all in the wrong way and, far from renouncing war, is now on the march everywhere in Europe and marking time in the U. S. A., the ranks salted with survivors of the Great War who should have had a bellyful by 1918.

One Saturday night a few years ago Cadet Dick Sheridan, of the U. S. Military Academy, broke his neck in a football game at Yale and died. It was a famous tragedy. But the same night five automobile wrecks occurred between the Yale Bowl and New York, to say nothing of any that may have happened on the other roads, as the crowd went tearing home, and these were routine news. Football is known as our most dangerous game, but the casualties to the customers on the roads before and after the games take 20 lives each for every life that is lost on the field. Yet these killings command little attention, for the motorist and his passengers, like hunters in the woods in the fall, are somehow deemed to be less dead or less deplorably dead than any other class of dead people except Dillingers.

• • • •

EXTENDING the idea, it might be thought that murder could be abated in this country if the movie theaters were to show news-reels of all the executions with sound. But the conduct of the gallery at a couple of rural picnic hangings in the United States this summer was such as to discourage the notion.

The people squatted on the grass, ate their hot dogs, made merry as the horrible examples plunged through the floor and went tearing home in their flivvers amused but not perceptibly impressed. There was an untoward incident, but merely an incident, in connection with one of these outings. A country belle, bound for a hanging at the county seat, had the misfortune to get killed in a smash-up on the way. This didn't throw any pall over the execution, however, and the spirits of the happy throng were unimpaired as the man went through the trap.

'Way Back Home

By

William Lyon Phelps

OUR famous and beloved American actress and singer, Peggy Wood, whom I have heard as a star in light opera and as Portia in "The Merchant of Venice," and whose original writing always shows both wit and charm, inherited some of her talents from a very remarkable father, Eugene Wood. He was an intimate friend of O. Henry and was himself a successful writer of short stories.

• • • •

And now comes a book to my table that I confidently recommend to all readers of this column who are middle-aged or more than that, while some younger ones may also find it palatable. It is called "Back Home and Folks Back Home," by Eugene Wood. It has an introduction by the novelist, Joseph C. Lincoln, and an equally charming Personal Note, by Peggy Wood. The volume contains a collection of her father's stories, which deal with American life in the Middle West during the eighties.

I wish I had known their author—Peggy Wood's father. She quotes in her preface some of his expressions. He was forced on one occasion to try some strange tobacco with a French name, and after he had lit it, he said, "Whew! This tastes like the smell of a wet dog under a stove!"

For Struggle And War

Fascist Italy Is Ready For Any Conflict Because Every Citizen, Young Or Old, Has Been Thoroughly Made Into A Warrior; But Under Mussolini No "Prussian Militarism" Exists.

By Andre Vulliet.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Rome.

ALTHOUGH the Fascist doctrine, ever since its inception 16 years ago, has constantly strengthened the morale of the Italian people and made them familiar with the ideas of struggle and war, Italy would not feel so fit today for her conflict with Abyssinia had not each and every Italian citizen been technically and practically drilled into a regular warrior.

Laying down as a principle that the functions of the citizen and of the soldier are "one," the Italian government has organized the nation's military preparation so that, from 8 to 55 years of age, every Italian citizen who is physically fit must belong to some military or paramilitary organization.

"Although it may be through no fault of theirs," the Giornale d'Italia recently wrote, "those citizens who do not own a soldier's uniform are poor fellows who deserve pity and who will never be worthy of a high position in the Italian state." A comparison with Prussian militarism would be inadequate, it seems, as the latter tended to create a military caste, a sort of class in itself which had but scorn for the rest of the nation. On the contrary, Il Duce's aim is to brace up the army and the nation with the same ideal and to make every man military-conscious. This result is to be achieved by constant drilling and, since last February, by courses of lectures on military instruction given in schools and colleges.

How Italian boys from 8 to 18 are reared in soldier-like fashion, parading, maneuvering and carrying arms, in the "Balilla" and "Avanguardisti" organizations, had been made known to every Post reader by pictures and articles. Even 6-to-8-year-old kids, although too young to be taught the noble art of war, are proudly taken care of as "Sons of the She-Wolf" (according to a legend which has it that the two brother-founders of Rome, Romulus and Remus, were brought up on the milk of a she-wolf).

What Italian youngsters do from 18 years until they join the army, around 21, is not so well known because it is a little more complicated.

• • • •

THOSE who want to get a special training to become aviators, sailors, radio operators and the like, join the "Fasci di Combattimento." This by no means relieves them from attending the "Preparatory Military Instruction" meetings, the presence at which is compulsory. The full instruction consists of 40 three-hour meetings, divided in two years. Up to recently, the meetings took place on Sundays, but upon the protest of the church on the ground that it interfered with the boys' religious duties, they are now held on Saturdays. This is what has been called the "Fascist Saturday," or "Fascist Week-End." But, unlike the regular week-end, it means that, throughout the country, from Sicily to the Alps, from Turin to Trieste, Italian youths, instead of fishing or doing what they please, indulge in the same, Roman-like military preparation.

Under the guidance of black-shirted Fascists and the supervision of the war department, about a million of such young men get the proper physical and military training every year. The latter embraces a theoretical instruction (army regulations and discipline) and a practical instruction (handling of a rifle, a machine-gun and a musket and shooting practice).

Thus, when they go in for 18 months of regualr conscription, Italian troops are already thoroughly trained. And when they come out they still have post-military obligations as, up to 32 years of age, they must attend meetings on Saturdays to keep in training and to preserve their military science. In case of danger, they may be called back into the army up to 55 years of age.

• • • •

THIS year's innovation as regards the Italian nation's military preparation is the teaching of the art of war and of military percepts in schools and colleges. This novelty, which took effect on February 1, is in full experiment now and is regarded by Italian experts as quite satisfactory.

While young Italians were made familiar with practically every branch of human knowledge, from Latin to astronomy, Il Duce found it illogical that, in a nation whose nationalistic sense is being so highly developed, they should go through their school years without getting the appropriate share of military knowledge. Since the cornerstone of the Fascist doctrine is to make a soldier out of every citizen and a citizen out of every soldier, it is but normal that military education should be an integral part of the general education.

This program of teaching, planned and supervised by Gen. Grazioli, of the general staff, is divided in three phases according to whether it is applied in preparatory or high schools or in universities.

In the first phase, the children are taught the first elements of the nation's military organization and of the army's set-up, they are shown how to read a map, they are told the heroic deeds of the World War. All this must be done in simple and attractive fashion.

In the second phase, the boys go more deeply into the army's organization, the use of the different armaments, the strategic value of Italy's frontiers and the moral value of discipline, co-ordination, scraifice. The third phase, taught in universities and colleges, is more especially meant for those who will become officers in the Italian army. Most of their teaching, therefore, is devoted to what we might call the philosophical or intellectual side of the military science, as opposed to its practical side. The lessons deal with "the war preparation of the nation" or with "the essence of war considered as a political and social phenomenon."

• • • •

NOR has the civil preparation to war been neglected. Should a conflict break out, all the Italian civil forces would be quickly rounded up for a "total mobilization." All the Italian citizens, without exception, whether they be women or minors, are to be called upon to contribute their activities to the country's defense.

In each commune a "resistance committee" has been formed with a view to devising the best means of organizing that "civil mobilization," of providing the necessary number of workers to insure the national defense, of keeping high the nation's morale and of taking drastic sanctions against those who would try to fail their "civil" duty. For both among its civilian population, as well as on the front line, Italy must be ready to face that "social and political phenomenon" called war.

Bannered Army

By

Ralph E. Renaud

A Mite of Justice, Also.

New York.

WHEN the children of New York march to school it is like an army with banners. One million of them, rather more than less, trudge back to their blackboards and their desks. And, although only one new school building has been erected, this year especially is going to be a period of innovation in educational methods.

The great handicap on the New York schools is the overwhelming swarm of pupils. It seems impossible to build fast enough or to hire teachers fast enough. The result is that from 40 to 60 pupils may be huddled together in a single class in which no one can be given much individual attention. The tendency is to promote them willy-nilly—or perhaps Willie-Nellie would be a more accurate expression—to prevent clogging in the lower grades.

This year classes are to be cut in 70 of the schools and there will be a more general reduction if the budget can be stretched. The average class will be 28, which is still manifestly too large. Somebody once said that the ideal educational institution was Mark Hopkins on one end of a log and a single student on the other end. That is an ideal, however, which will scarcely be realized in the metropolitan system. Even the Little Red Schoolhouse which didn't go in for mass production, was better as to the size of its classes.

• • • •

IN 50 of the schools, grades are to be entirely eliminated in the first three years. There will be neither promotions nor left-behinds. It is felt that the problem of retardation can be much more satisfactorily dealt with on that basis, for the pupil who doesn't "make the grade" is always smeared with the psychological conviction that he never will. Slow pupils, under the new arrangement, will be encouraged to put out their fullest effort.

Effort, indeed, is to be the chief standard of the new report cards. A student of medium ability who has tried as hard as he can will be adjudged "satisfactory," whereas a brilliant but lazy student who hasn't proved a credit to his own capacities will be unhesitatingly written off as "unsatisfactory." Co-operation from the home folks will be emphasized, and parents will be drawn just as far as possible into the educational system.

In the high schools a complete innovation is to be tried and it will certainly prove good news to the young folks. "Must" subjects are to be dropped, which of course is quite contrary to educational tendencies among members of Congress, but which is felt, nevertheless, to be a step in the liberalization of teaching. It will no longer be necessary for a student to have passed in mathematics, science or foreign languages to secure a diploma. He can even drop these subjects from his study card to concentrate on lines in which he feels more at home. But there will be a subtle distinction in diplomas. The student who has dropped the "must" subjects will get a "General Diploma," which certifies his graduation, but will not speed him on the way to college. Those who remain successfully in the beaten track will receive an "Academic Diploma," which will be a necessary document for matriculation into a university. Thus, there won't be so many high school students who "didn't quite finish," and the colleges will lose none who might have.

• • • •

ANOTHER innovation is to be teaching by sound films. Two classes of equal ability, each with teachers of equal rating, will be started on a given subject, say in history or science. One class will proceed in the usual manner, but the work of the other will be supplemented with talking movies, especially prepared for their instruction. At the end of a given period the two classes will be tested as to their advance. On the outcome will probably hang the fate of sound films in the New York schools.

Later in the season a "school for geniuses" is to be established in conjunction with Teachers College. There, extraordinarily bright children will study under the stimulus of companions equally gifted, and the results will be carefully tabulated by psychologists. At the same time and in the same building there will be a class for backward children in which none will have to compete with students who exceed them in capacity.

While all these innovations are being undertaken the lamentable question arises of what to do with children who seem to have been educated entirely by the movies and have no other psychology than that of the screen at its worst. And yet the movies the other day in New York returned a mite to justice for all the normal development they have stolen from the inchoate child mind.

• • • •

IT WAS an extraordinary scene. A gang of young murderers, who had shot down a subway collector without even giving him a chance to raise his hands, was lined up before a motion picture camera equipped with a sound-recording device in District Attorney Geoghan's office in Brooklyn. At first they were sullen enough, but suddenly, as the camera continued to click, their leader, a youthful moron named Joe Bolognia, began to strut and assume the attitudes he imagined a gunman in the films would take. The first words he blurted out were something his dim mind remembered from the thrillers he had seen: "I heard crime don't pay an' now I know it."

Joe just couldn't miss his chance to be a movie star. And there and then, under the relentless prodding of the district attorney, he confessed bit by bit the whole story of the crime, acting it out as well as he could and with every move and gesture going into the picture record. There was no real indication that he was sorry for his deed or his victim. His whole thought was for his posture before the camera.

Nor could his companions resist the lure of ticking shutter. From time to time, as Bolognia swaggered in stardom, one of another of them chimed in, anxious that his part in the crime be duly emphasized. The fact that an official stenographer had been summoned to note every fatal word did not seem to bother them in the least. They only quit talking when the camera ran out of film. But by that time every detail of how the cruel, ruthless shots were fired was in the manufactured shadowgraph, which will undoubtedly send them to the "hot squat." But they had all become movie actors and Joe Bolognia, in his own estimation, was the James Cagney of the Coney Island sand lots.

• • • •

WHEN his performance was over he sank wearily into a chair and summoned one of the detectives who had been watching him. "Say, buddy," he remarked with a smirk, pulling a five-dollar bill from his pocket, "I been up all night. Get me a pint of whisky like a good guy, will yuh?"

The detective didn't get Joe Bolognia the pint of whisky. Neither did he knock him down.

A Sponge Mop Handy Gadget To Save Labor

Device Especially Useful on Linoleum Floors Is Inexpensive.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

THE other day, in our tour through the household department of a local store, we found that even the humble floor mop can be interesting. This store has recently stocked a new mop which for sheer ingenuity of design and labor saving qualities, left us breathless.

At the end of the handle is a steel attachment which holds a sponge. To wring the water out, you simply press a little gadget on the attachment which squeezes out the water without getting your hands wet and dirty. Then, with the dry sponge, it is easy to absorb whatever puddles may be left on the floor. This handy gadget is especially useful on linoleum floors, where the water is apt to congregate in pools.

This little marvel costs only $1.69, and for a limited time a refill sponge is being given away with each mop purchased.

Dressing Table Necessities.

IF YOU WANT to make a dollar go a long way, visit an F street department store which has something very special this month in the line of necessities for the dressing table. Two stunning cut glass bottles in rose, black and crystal, or plain crystal, plus a dainty little powder jar, plus a good-looking glass tray—all these may be yours for the small sum of $1. If you can bear to part with them yourself they will make stunning bridge prizes or gifts.

Specially Prepared Powder.

POWDER covers a multitude of sins, but unless it be just the right blend, it is apt to emphasize one's weaker points. The dusky female who plasters herself with a glaring white shade, or the blonde who applies dark tones to her fair skin, look as incongruous as Shirley Temple at a cocktail party.

Every skin should have its own special mixture. The woman who buys her powder haphazardly here and there will rarely find the shade which suits her particular type. Fortunately, however, a local beautician is able to supply women, at slight expense, with specially prepared blends of powder which will suit their own particular complexion.

He brought back from Paris a tricky little gadget called a powder mill. With this mill he is able to blend artistically various shades to go with all kinds of skin textures. It's the only mill in town, so you may be sure you are getting something novel indeed. The cost is only $1 for a generous-sized box.

Make-Up Gift Box.

BLACK AND GOLD, or red, white and blue is the striking color combination in the gift box of compact and lipstick on sale at the same store. The powder is of the finest blend and comes in several shades. The lipstick is waterproof and kiss proof. So handsome is this outfit that it is suitable for daytime and evening use alike, and costs only $2.

"Right' Soap for the Bath.

ONE OF THE greatest, though little sung pleasure, in life is lolling luxuriously in a hot fragrant tub after a hard day of shopping or working. To get the most out of this delightful experience, one should have just the right kind of soap. Such a soap may be found at a local store, which for fine quality and rich lather-making chemicals beats any we've used for sometime. It has a pleasant fragrance, and a cold cream base which is just what you need to give your skin that ruddy, cleanly glow of health.

Adrian, Movie Designer, Discusses Style Trends

Buy Conservatively Cut Dresses and Avoid Fads, He Advises.

What Gloria Glitter or Sylvia Starlet wears in her latest film has a tremendous influence on women's wardrobes throughout the country. Who designs their stunning costumes? Who has made Hollywood the great American showcase. This is the second of a series of articles on moviedom celebrities.

By Hope Ridings Miller.
A Staff Correspondent.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 18.—Season after season the style winds of Filmland fill the sails of smartness and determine its course. Month after month women throughout the country plan their ensembles according to flicker fashions.

But the screen sirens themselves can take little credit for this. I never realized how little, until I glimpsed some of the stars at the Trocadero and at Cocoanut Grove in costumes obviously designed without benefit of Banton, Newman or Adrian.

It put me to thinking. If Geraldine Glamor, Bessie Big Name and other luminaries habitually dressed off the screen like last year's laundress, who was responsible for Hollywood's standing in the fashion world?

I found the answer at the MGM Studios in Adrian, the Connecticut boy who got to the West Coast by way of Paris and New York, and eventually became a famous style creator in the celluloid city.

Workshop Artistic and Practical.

I talked to him in the spacious room where he translates his ideas into sketches and discusses with stars and directors his plans for costumes in forthcoming productions. Artistic as well as practical, the workshop reflects its occupant's personality, and is just what you would expect Adrian to have. Venetian blinds and draperies of cream glazed chintz, with pleated edges, set off the huge windows on two sides. A mirror from floor to ceiling covers one wall. A beige rug, fancy tables and chairs and a low, cream-colored couch furnish the room.

Probably few persons in Hollywood believe more than Adrian that idiosyncrasy is the inevitable mistress of talent. Often, seeking to design a gown or a hat that will appeal to the whims of a star, he creates a fashion that sweeps the country. This happened when he designed a pill-box hat for Greta Garbo to wear in a film. A month after the picture appeared, every up-to-the-minute millinery window in New York carried a duplicate of the model.

But where does Adrian get his ideas? Designing clothes that will not be seen until the picture is released months later, where does he look for inspiration?

Tunes In on World Events.

He keeps abreast of the fashion cycle, he explained; and he tunes in on world events.

"Style changes recur in the same order in a series," he went on, "so that each generation has an opportunity to wear short and long skirts, broad and narrow shoulders, full and tight sleeves. The cycle completes itself about every 20 years. Being fairly well acquainted with that by now, I know something of what women will be wearing next season, and the next, and the next. But of course world events also have a strong effect on the silhouette, particularly in promoting fads."

He pointed out that when war clouds gather, you may find a militaristic note in brief coats trimmed in soutache, short skirts and plumed turbans. "And remember how the opening of the Egyptian ruler's tomb once ushered in the King Tut fad, in all its ramifications?" he asked.

"The recent Italian exhibit in Paris is largely responsible for the present Renaissance trend," he said. "But the fashion cycle wasn't yet ready for it; therefore, I've an idea it is little more than a fad, even though the colors are exquisite. In my opinion, the woman who would be well-dressed this winter won't be led too far astray with titian reds, medici purples, cellini greens and boticelli blues because the basic feeling of the whole winter picture is one of simplicity in line with details supplying the gayety.

Color, he believes, has a strong effect on most women. He has discovered in working with the stars that many respond more readily to one color than another. Garbo, for example, is particularly fond of gray; Shearer and Harlow both prefer white, while Crawford is partial to blue.

ADRIAN.

He advises the woman who dresses on a limited budget to choose her colors and her materials carefully, to buy dresses of conservative cut and to avoid fads. She should also think of her figure as much as the prevailing mode. No matter if fashion dictates a 14-inch skirt, the woman with pipe-stem, bowed, or overstuffed legs should have her dresses a few inches longer, in his opinion. "In other words, she has to become acquainted with the basis on which she has to work before she goes in for any extreme style," he said.

Tomorrow—Travis Banton, creator of gowns worn by Claudette Colbert, Mae West, Carole Lombard and Marlene Dietrich, gives a fashion forecast.

Country Girl Asks Where She Can Borrow Money to Finance Schooling.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I have been very much interested in your daily column and I was particularly interested in "College Booster's" letter, which appeared in the issue of August 27. She stated that two of her daughters borrowed money to attend business college. I should like to know just where money can be obtained for this purpose.

• • • •

I am a 16-year-old graduate of a country high school and would like to enter college this fall. I should greatly appreciate any information which you can give me, and would like to have an early reply. Yours truly, COUNTRY GIRL.

Talk to College Dean.

DEAR COUNTRY GIRL: I suggest you approach the dean of whatever business school you would like to enter this fall and discuss your financial problem with him. He can no doubt advise you what institutions or individuals are prepared to loan money to students, and on what terms.

You may recall that "College Booster," in directing her letter to a mother who had written for advice on how to finance her young daughter's business school training, said this: ". . . if the officials of the college she has in mind discover her daughter is capable and ambitious they may allow her to pay part or all of her tuition after she gets a job." The school that mother had referred to was Strayer Business College. The name of the dean is E. G. Purvis. M. H.

Mrs. Sanger Invited To Speak in India

Margaret Sanger, birth control leader, has accepted an invitation of the All India Women's Conference to be the feature speaker and guest of honor at its coming annual conference at Travancore in December.

This conference, representing about 12,000,000 women of India, went on record for birth control in 1932 and has reiterated its stand each succeeding year. It is the largest organization of women in the world to demand officially that birth control information be a part of all public health programs.

Mrs. Sanger has been invited to spend some time in India after the conference. After leaving India she will go to China, Japan and Hawaii.

Sun-Tanned Complexions Can Be Bleached Easily

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Granted that sun-tanned faces blended handsomely with a world of sun and surf and sand. Granted, too, that back in town they're still becoming and fashion-right with many outfits. But for the great occasion . . . to grace the new evening gown and the glittering hair clips, a paler shade will be more effective.

Renaissance colors, too, are at their best when set off by an alabaster brow—a smooth and radiant complexion

Keep a stout heart, however, and don't be dismayed even if summer's sun and wind have worked havoc with your face. Fashion has concocted bleaching creams and lotions that make tan gradually become paler, and finally disappear like mists before the sun! There are, besides, rich creams that penetrate even the elusive, deep-down pores, and replenish the precious natural oils that are bound to have been dried up to some extent, at least, during the summer.

Hair, too, is apt to be at its worst after dozens of salt water baths . . . wind-whipped and sun-soaked till it looks woe-begone and limp. To remedy this state of affairs, why not try a few hot oil shampoos, and some vigorous massaging to supple up the scalp, and make ready the hair for the fall permanent? There are hair oils, too, to apply after the shampoo—before the hair is dry—that are fine for restoring luster and vitality.

Be sure not to forget the hands and back! Hand lotions can be bought that soften and whiten and work wonders generally. And they're just as good for backs!

Summer sunshine takes its toll of eyes, too. Some have an end-of-summer squint—or fine lines etched around the corners. There are muscle oils and eye washes for this state of affairs. To soothe and rest and relieve strain . . . till eyes emerge with that clear tranquillity that may have been mislaid somewhere in the breakers.

Saturday: New fall blouses.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

EVERY LADY has a right to a rank extravagance once in a while. It's somethink like wild oats . . . when you settle down, you are so very, very good. That's why I feel like a kindred soul with this reader.

K. T. L. WRITES: Ever since I can remember I've wanted one of those lovely big puffy comforters for the foot of my bed . . . down filled no less and made of satin. That always seemed the height of luxury to me. Well, my husband has just given me a birthday check and I'm going to blow it in for just that! Am I foolish when there are lots of things we really need? About color—I can't afford to make a mistake. Our room has blue walls with a neutral rug and mahogany furniture. The bed has a spread and tester ruffle of white point d'esprit and I have a dressing table with a white point d'esprit skirt made very full. What color would you have the comforter? And what would you use for an upholstered chair that needs a new cover? Also what lamps and draperies . . . the glass curtains are white point d'esprit. I don't want pink or rose . . . that has been used so much with blue that I'd prefer something different.

ANSWER: Yellow is a lovely color with blue . . . why don't you have your comforter in yellow satin? Then have your chair and draperies in chintz with a white ground and yellow flowers. I'd like the lamps in white or crystal, I think.

How Altitudes Affect Fliers Is Explained

No Positive Evidence Found They Are Injurious Up to 12,000 Feet.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

DOES altitude affect us? May we fly at a 10,000, 15,000, or 20,000 foot elevation with comfort?

An altitude of 10,000 feet is scarcely noticed by even an acute observer, and between 10,000 and 12,000 feet will perturb but a small number of individuals. There may be some slight flushing of the face or a feeling of "fullness" in the head, but these symptoms are of little significance. Above 12,000 feet however, headache, breathlessness, muscle weakness and some mild disturbance of the mental faculties as well as vision are often apparent. A small supplementary supply of oxygen is advised at elevations of 15,000 feet or higher.

Very few effects of flying at the 10,000 foot level are noticeable except to excessively sensitive persons. Patients with heart disease, such as mitral stenosis (narrowing of the valve between the lower and upper portions of the heart on the left side), may observe symptoms of breathlessness even at that height, but if they are quiet and are not called upon for muscular exertion very little evidence of this symptom will appear. A recent report notes that Army aviators have difficulty in manipulating cameras and guns when flying for any great length of time above the 15,000 level. Cold increases the symptoms and it is only when oxygen is used that they disappear

Pulse Becomes More Rapid.

Mountain (for altitude) sickness associated with climbing is nearly always complicated by the fact that the adventurer has experienced considerable muscular fatigue. The pulse becomes more rapid and there are symptoms of ringing in the ears, dimness of sight, and a feeling of faintness. The skin as a rule feels hot and is markedly congested.

During altitude flights changes occur in the blood which increase the number of red cells. This rise averages about 50,000 per cubic millimeter for each 1,000 feet of elevation. Hence at 10,000 feet the red cells should be about 500,000 per cubic millimeter in excess of normal, if the blood reacts quickly. This means that the blood can carry the usual amount of oxygen as more carriers are provided, although each holds less oxygen.

There is no positive evidence that moderately high altitudes—up to 12,000 feet—are injurious to those in reasonably good health. Individuals suffering from severe anemia or from pulmonary disease, particularly emphysema (dilation of the air sacs), should not, however, attempt even this height. In other words, the person who complains of labored breathing at the level to which he is accustomed will only aggravate the symptom on reaching an appreciably higher elevation.

Bank Positions Luring Women

Number Holding Big Jobs Increases 350 Per Cent in Two Decades.

WOMEN are invading the banking field in increasing numbers, but the majority are still employed as office workers. Nevertheless, three and a half times as many women held responsible bank positions in 1930 as in 1910.

These statistics were presented by Miss Mary Anderson, director of the women's bureau, United States Department of Labor, speaking last night at the annual banquet of the women's committee of the Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Banking at the Y. W. C. A.

Miss Anderson said that women's greatest opportunity in banks remains in the clerical field. The few who have attained positions of responsibility in banks, she pointed out, have usually come up through the ranks and have received their promotions only after long experience in stenographic or clerical work.

"The increasing success of women in the women's departments, personnel, trust, publicity and foreign departments and in secretarial and clerical work," Miss Anderson said, "make banking a field in which women may see a hopeful future of significant work."

A recent study made by the Women's Bureau of women office workers showed women in clerical positions in banks to be earning slightly more than women in other types of offices except investment houses, Miss Anderson reported. Their median monthly salary was $111, half earning more, half less.

Since women own and control a substantial amount of the national wealth and income, Miss Anderson pointed out, their advance into the financial world is a logical and inevitable step.

FAVORITE FOODS of FAMOUS FOLK

Guests Are Fortunate When Mrs. Borah Serves Chicken Fricassee.

By Pattie Ellicott.

"SHE LOOKETH WELL to the ways of her household" might have been written of Mrs. William E. Borah, wife of the senior Senator from Idaho.

Mrs. Borah knows the art of homemaking in a measure beyond that of the ordinary woman. Her beautiful apartment on Connecticut avenue is filled with objects of art, rare Chinese pieces and the thousand and one Lares and Penates she and Senator Borah have collected in their travels.

Mrs. Borah is a keen judge of good food and, if necessary, can turn out some splendid specimens of the culinary art herself. Of course, this is rarely necessary in Washington because of her well-trained servants. Often, however, when the Borahs are in their home town, Boise, where they have a delightful old house, Mrs. Borah sometimes cooks the Senator's favorite dishes for him.

When there is chicken fricassee, southern style, for family dinner the fortunate guests join in applause. This is the way Mrs. Borah makes it:

3 to 4 pounds chicken
3 pints cold water
1 small onion cut up
2 tablespoons celery cut up
¼ cup canned tomatoes
½ teaspoon parsley chopped
½ teaspoon salt (about)
Good dash pepper

Clean hen, disjoint as for frying, cover with water; add onion, celery, tomatoes, parsley, salt and pepper. Cook slowly and steadily three to four hours, being careful not to cook chicken to pieces. Liquor should boil down to about three cupfuls.

Remove chicken from stock, keep warm. Strain stock, skim off grease. Twelve minutes before serving drop following dumplings in reheated stock.

The dumplings are made as follows:

1 cup sifted flour
¼ cup milk (about)
1 teaspoon melted butter
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 egg, pinch salt

Beat lightly the egg broken into a flat platter. Then mix the flour, salt, and baking powder together, sift into egg, stir. Milk should be added to the batter until it is smooth enough from spoon, then add the butter.

Then drop the dumplings mixture by small tablespoonfuls into the boiling stock, cover the vessel and boil for 12 minutes.

Home Is Filled With Pitfalls For Youngsters

Entire Family Is Urged to Co-operate in the Proper Precautions.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.
Associated Press Staff Writer.

THERE IS an appalling number of accidents in the home, and a large proportion of these involve children. Life insurance companies are even publishing pamphlets on the subject in an effort to persuade people to consider the need of "safety first" in the home as well as in the factory.

A factory manager who permitted his employes to work in plants as carelessly equipped as many houses are, would not keep his job long. But no one can discharge parents or walk out on them. The children must risk it.

Mrs. Jones is making preserves. On the stove is a pot of boiling fruit juice, the handle of which sticks out into the room. It is dangerous enough for Mrs. Jones and the grown members of the family, but it is a menace to the life of the toddler who is playing about.

Mrs. Smith is ironing. Susy, who is not 2, insists on sitting in the clothes basket under the ironing board. Her mother, tired of correcting the child, allows her to do it, forgetting how easily an iron may slip and fall.

The home is full of traps and pitfalls for the little child who has no experience to guide him. Stoves, open fires, knives, scissors, matches, poisons, gas, electric wires, firearms, boiling liquids, electric fans—the list could be prolonged indefinitely without touching on extra hazards like slippery floors, objects left on dark stairs, beads or needles and pins dropped on the floor where the crawling baby can find and swallow them.

It takes very little extra time and effort to prevent accidents, but it requires imagination of the mother to foresee the possibilities of danger, and the precaution of the entire family in the care and management of the home.

Plea Revived For Oyster Dredge Laws

Opening of Potomac to Operation Will Be Sought Anew.

Efforts in Maryland and Virginia Legislatures Promised.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Sept. 18.—Opening of the Potomac River to oyster dredgers would be sought at the next sessions of the Maryland and Virginia Legislatures, it was announced today.

Reviving the controversial subject, Robert F. Duer, chairman of the State conservation commission, said he would try to have the Maryland Legislature pass a law opening the river to dredgers, when it convenes in special session next February.

He said Richard Armstrong, Virginia fisheries commissioner, had assured him he would seek passage of a similar law by the Old Dominion Legislature in January.

Dredgers are prohibited now from operating in the Potomac. Only tongers may take oysters from it.

Duer said he favored allowing only sailboats to participate in dredging operations. He would ban machine-driven winches and permit only that work done by hand.

Dredgers could reach many fine oysters which the tongers could not get to in 30 or 40 feet of water, he said. The commission chairman also pointed out opening of the river to dredging would provide additional employment for watermen.

Such a move as Duer favored has been opposed for years. In 1933, Senator J. Allan Coad (Democrat), St. Marys, conducted a 17-hour filibuster against such a measure.

C. T. Simmons, Maryland Conservation Department, Loses Fight.

The charges of "willful neglect of duty and incompetence" were denied by Simmons at his hearing several days ago.

Jones asserted "evidence submitted by many witnesses indicated an extraordinary lack of respect for conservation laws on the part of crabbers and packers in Simmons' district," and that the number of arrests by Simmons during the recent period under review * * * were entirely inadequate."

Youth Finds Buried Coins Of Gold and Silver on Farm

Berlin, Md., Sept. 18.—Discovery of a hoard of buried gold and silver American coins by George Harmon, 12-year-old Berlin schoolboy, on a farm at Ironshire, near here, was revealed yesterday when the boy's father, G. B. Harmon, took part of the money to a bank for examination. A gold dollar, part of the money found, bore the date of 1851.

Harmon said his son was walking in a field adjacent to the Berlin-Snow Hill State highway when he found the first gold coin partly buried.

The boy ran home to tell his parents of the find. They returned to the scene and began digging. Near the surface of the ground, two more gold coins were found, together with silver coins, one of which was identified as a half dollar.

The date on most of the coins was not decipherable and some of the money had fused, showing evidence that it had been through a fire at some period.

Harmon and his son refused to sell any of the coins found. The value of the find is not known.

Marital Ban 'HotHeaded,' Parson Says

Elkton's Marrying Cleric Unfrocked, at Loss to Explain Action.

State Forbids Him to Wed Couples, After Baptists' Ouster.

By the Associated Press.

Elkton, Md., Sept. 18.—Barred by State statute from performing wedding ceremonies, the Rev. Edward Minor, unfrocked "marrying parson" of this Maryland "Gretna Green," was uncertain tonight what his future course would be.

"I'll have to think over the matter," he said. "I don't know what to do about it."

Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor ruled in Baltimore today that marriage ceremonies performed by Minor would be in violation of the State law and the weddings illegal.

Delivered to Secretary of State Thomas Dawson, at Annapolis, the opinion clarified the legal aspects of the action of the Brantley Baptist Church in Baltimore, declaring the ordination of the minister "null and void."

Still in Dark, Minor Says.

Minor said, however, that he was still somewhat in the dark as to the developments. He said he had not been officially notified of the church's action or of O'Conor's ruling. He said it was "hearsay" as far as he was officially concerned.

"I had no idea they would do a trick of that kind," the minister said. "It's so hot-headed."

"I haven't married any couples for quite a while," he added.

Dawson had asked O'Conor for a ruling after Robert D. McCurdy, clerk of the church, notified him of the action taken September 11. McCurdy said Minor had been notified.

Violation Carries $500 Fine.

The attorney general replied further ceremonies performed by the minister would be in violation of the Maryland statute requiring that marriages be performed by an officer of some church. Violation carries a fine of $500.

The church's resolution said Minor was ordained "about the year 1914," that "for many years he has not been actively engaged in the work of the ministry," but devoted himself to the marriage "business" in Elkton.

In this connection, the resolution said in depriving the minister of his credentials, "he has, in our judgment, brought reproach upon the Baptist ministry, by the methods that have been followed."

Rudy Denies Favoritism On Licenses

Maryland Motor Vehicle Commissioner Answers Former Aid.

Insists Appointment of Son Did Not Violate Merit System.

By the United Press.

Baltimore, Sept. 18.—Assertions he exhibited favoritism toward a law violator and disregarded the merit system were denied today by Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Walter R. Rudy.

The accusations were made yesterday by Milton W. Schlutter, former legal examiner, in answer to Rudy's charges of "arbitrary, dictatorial and unjudicial" activities, for which he was suspended.

Schlutter said Rudy's favoritism consisted in issuing a new driver's license to W. J. Glatzel, of Baltimore, after the legal examiner had stamped it with a "violation record" warning.

Second Charge Denied.

Rudy asserted today, however, that in so doing, he was seeking to correct what he deemed an unwarranted exercise of authority by Schlutter.

The Commissioner also denied Schlutter's charge that the appointment of his son, W. Dana Rudy, as an assistant legal examiner, constituted violation of the merit system. Schlutter asserted young Rudy received $200 a month, and he, $89.

Rudy said he issued the new operator's card to Glatzel after an investigation convinced him use of the violation stamp in the case was not justified.

Found Minor Violations.

The Commissioner said he found that Glatzel had paid five small fines for minor violations, but had never been involved in a serious accident. He said Glatzel had been driving for 30 years.

Filing his answer to Rudy's charges with State Employment Commissioner Harry C. Jones, Schlutter asserted he had acted in the usual manner in the case, but that Rudy rescinded his action after Glatzel had protested to him.

Herb, the Dog Man, Is Ready To Peddle Pets to Students

Herb and three of his pets which he peddles to students "at a great loss," at Lexington, Va.

Sometimes They Return to Him and He Puts 'Em on Sale Again.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Lexington, Va., Sept. 17.—Herb has had a lean summer, but business is picking up.

Herb, or as he is more commonly known, "Herb, the Dog Man," is back at the campus entrances of Washington and Lee University and Virginia Military Institute. Few pass without being accosted by this familiar character and his questioning:

"Cap, how about a dog?"

This is followed by the hasty presentation of a dog, maybe a squirming pup from one of many pockets of his bulging coat. Prices range from $10 to 25 cents, the latter at a "terrible loss."

Freshmen are warned in advance about Herb's sales talk and about how many of his dogs run back to him, and how he sells 'em again. But at least 30 new students will buy during the school year.

Herb has been catching and selling dogs for 30 years and has made "right smart of money at it." His brother, Sam, formerly gave him stern competition, but Herb "just done put Sam outen business."

Sometimes he takes a dog back on a trade-in for a new one and makes a profit on both ends of the deal. He once sold a white collie for $10. It was deaf but the purchaser didn't know it, and it ran straight home to Herb the first time it was off a leash. The next day the purchaser paid Herb a visit.

"Say," he says, "you sold me a deaf dog and I want my money back."

"You asked me how much I wanted for him, didn'tcha?" Herb inquired—"an' I told you $10. You didn't ask me if he was deaf."

Herb next traded the dog for a watch and an overcoat and again he came home. The second buyer came around to see about getting his money back.

"Oh, sure he's deaf," Herb admitted, "I jes' forgot to give you the ear trumpet that goes with him."

Court Hears Plea to Drop Ballot Suit

Technical Point Argued in Fight Over State Senate Seat.

Wood Testifies HeSigned and Swore to Walton Petition.

By the Associated Press.

Chesterfield Courthouse, Va., Sept. 18.—Over the objection of counsel for the contestee, C. H. Wood, of Louisa County, took the witness stand today to testify that he as a qualified voter had signed and sworn to the petition by which H. H. Walton seeks to invalidate the nomination of S. Wood was called to the stand by Walton's counsel after argument by Coleman's attorneys that the petition be dismissed because Wood's name did not appear in the body of the petition as a qualified elector.

Claims Amendment Lapsed.

C. O'Conor Goolrick, attorney for Coleman, argued that an amendment to the petition to show a contestant qualification could not be made after the statutory time limit for filing of the complaint had lapsed.

Counsel for Coleman had asked that the Walton petition be quashed and dismissed on the grounds, first, that it was not properly drawn and that Coleman was not specifically made a party to the complaint, and, second, that the allegations were vague and indefinite and were based on conclusions and not facts.

George Allen, of Richmond, counsel for Walton, read the petition signed by qualified voters of the district. The document containing 30 allegations, asked that the certificate of election made out to Coleman be annulled and that Walton be declared the nominee.

Allegations Enumerated.

Among the allegations contained in the petition were the following:

That votes were cast by persons improperly registered, that votes were improperly cast by mail, that votes were cast by persons not legally residents of Virginia for the period required by the voters' law, that a pauper voted, that persons who had not paid their poll tax within the required time voted, that persons whose poll tax had been paid by others voted, that in three precincts in Spotsylvania County money and intoxicating liquors were used in behalf of Coleman's candidacy, and that the vote of one man who died the day before the election was counted.

Nats Beat Chisox With Rallies, 5-4, 3-1, to End 4-Game Streak

Buck Newsom And Linke On Slab

Hurler's Hit in Ninth of First Tilt Provides Victory Margin.

Stone's Three Blows in Finale Figure in All of Griffs' Runs.

By Shirley Povich.

WITH a line-up that smacked of Chattanooga the Nats suffered a compound fracture of their four-game losing streak yesterday, relieving the White Sox of a pair of ball games by the close but sufficient scores of 5 to 4 and 3 to 1.

On exhibit in the Washington infield were Third Baseman Buddy Lewis and Shortstop Johnny Mihalic, Chattanooga farmhands called in for a late-season trial. They proved no drawback, handling themselves commendably in the field, although aggregating only two hits during the double-header proceedings.

The people who won the games for Washington were Buck Newsom, Ed Linke and Johnny Stone. Newsom was the undisputed hero of the first battle when, after a passed ball by Catcher Cliff Bolton had aided the White Sox to tie the score in the ninth, the big pitcher produced a hit on his own account to drive over the winning run.

Three Hits for Stone.

Stone and Linke collaborated nicely in that second game. With Linke holding the White Sox to nine hits and protecting his slender lead as if it were something sacred, Stone supplied the batting punch with a single, double and triple that figured in all of the Nats' runs.

The Nats were outhit, 8 to 11, in that first game but they battered down a 3-to-0 lead the White Sox had given Pitcher Babe Phelps with a cluster of runs in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings. Newsom yielded the Sox a run at the start after Al Simmons doubled and he gave up two more in the fourth when a walk to Washington was sandwiched among left field singles by Hayes, Hopkins and Shea.

Then the Nats began to busy themselves against Phelps. They had scored a run in the fourth without the aid of a hit when Simmons made a two-base muff of Lewis' fly and they tied the score with a two-run uprising in the fifth when Bolton doubled to right, Bluege singled to left, Newsom sacrificed and Kuhel tripled to right field.

Daring on Bases.

Washington went ahead in the sixth on a daring bit of base running by Jake Powell, who walked, stole second and raced to third on catcher Shea's wild throw. Bolton's single scored him and the Nats were in front, 4 to 3. This state of affairs endured until the ninth, but it required a superb play by Bluege after Washington's triple with one out in the eighth to cut off a White Sox run. Bluege took Sewell's grounder, threw Washington out at the plate, and Bolton caught Sewell off first with a snap throw for a double play.

Shea launched the ninth for the White Sox with a single to right and took second on Conlan's sacrifice, but at this point young Lewis took Radcliffe's grounder and ran Shea down between second and third. But on a passed ball to Bolton, Radcliffe raced to second and was in scoring position for Simmons' single to right that followed.

With the game deadlocked, the Nats wasted little time in untying it. With one out, Bluege drove a double into left and raced home standing up on Newsom's single to right.

Sox Take Early Lead.

The White Sox were off to a lead in that second game, too, scoring a run off Linke in the second inning when Appling, Hopkins and Sewell produced singles. But thereafter, Linke was in command, permitting no more than one hit in only a single inning.

Vernon Kennedy, recent hero of the American League's first no-hit game in four years, held his 1-0 lead for three innings and then found himself trailing, 2-1. Appling launched the Nats' fourth-inning rally with a muff of Myer's hard smash and Stone drove Myer home with a terrific triple to the farthest center field corner. Stone scored on Powell's infield hit.

Stone was the prime factor in the Nats' sixth-inning unrising against Kennedy when he led off the inning with a double to left. Buddy Lewis slammed a solid single to right to bring Stone home and that ended the day's scoring.

Allen Fisher Captures Junior Tennis Tourney

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 18.—Coming back to take the third set after losing the second, Allan Fisher defeated Lawrence Middlekamp in the singles final of the Cumberland Junior championship tennis tournament yesterday on the North End Playground courts. The scores were 6—4, 1—6 and 6—1.

Fisher reached the semifinals by virtue of a 6—3, 10—8 victory over Charles Jones in the feature quarter-final clash—and then downed Marvin Kaplon, 6—2, 7—5, to advance to the final.

Middlekamp also figured in a three-set battle in the semifinals, being extended to defeat William Mateer, 5—7, 6—3, 6—4.

Roanoke Grid Hopes High For 1935

Lack of Reserves Is Big Problem Now Facing Coach White.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

A Staff Correspondent.

SALEM, Va., Sept. 18.—The mysterious pigskin epidemic that Swept over the State, stripping virtually all football teams of their reserves, did not spare little Roanoke College, but it failed to tear the Maroon asunder from its cast-iron confidence or its buoyant spirit.

Head Coach Gordon C. ("Pap") White will send a small but fast and aggressive—he hopes—team into action, and he makes no secret of the fact that he expects it to be decidedly better than the 1934 eleven that won only four games in ten. But his hopes are founded entirely on the first team, and injuries or a mishap of any other hue easily can bring his air castles tumbling down upon his unsuspecting ears.

Thirty men, a small number in gridiron terms, comprise the squad. The line will average 170 pounds, and the backfield only 165 pounds. White is working diligently on a kicker with his football file, hoping to turn out a finished product, but he has not yet found the raw material for a passer.

Smith Counted On.

Roanoke's best back probably will be H. Smith, 165-pound half back, the team's most proficient blocker and a hard runner. He gave evidence of developing into a star of some magnitude last season and should attain the top of the ladder this autumn.

Wroniewicz, a 155-pound individual with a hide of granite, will pair with "H" at half back and attend to the kicking—for a while at least. Connie Snidow, string-beanish end, is developing rapidly as a kicker and may qualify for the regular assignment.

Charley Patrone, the pride of Hyde Park High School several years ago, will direct field operations, and the full backing, with its line plunging and the rest of it, will be assigned to Johnny Pitzer, heaviest man on the squad. Pitzer scales 190 pounds. Remove him from the line-up and the ball carriers' average drops considerably.

Five Seek End Posts.

Five ambitious but somewhat unpolished lads are in the scramble for a regular end position. Mac Carr and Johnny Irvin are on top of the heap for the nonce, but Tut Agisheff, Mel Dengate and Snidow can be counted on to see plenty of action once the season gets under way.

George Pitzer, no relation to John, and Carey Brewbaker have just about clinched the tackles, with Bill Whitesell, 181-pounder, and Earl Fisher, only 157 pounds, leading the race to be regular guards.

Red Sox Nip Tigers On Hit in 9th, 4-3

Wes Ferrell's Pinch Blow Turns Back Rowe.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Sept. 18.—Wesley Ferrell, who yesterday pitched his twenty-fourth victory of the season, filled the hero's role again today by pinch-hitting for Oscar Melillo, with the bases filled, in the ninth and driving in the run that gave the Boston Red Sox a 4-to-3 victory over the champion Detroit Tigers.

Yarosz-Risko In Title Bout Tonight

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 18 (AP).—Teddy Yarosz will step into the ring under the floodlights at the Pittsburgh Pirates' ball park tomorrow night to defend his middleweight championship against the only man who ever has decisively defeated him—Babe Risko, the rugged young puncher from Syracuse, N. Y.

Just a little more than nine months ago, the Syracuse fighter gave the boxing game an amazing upset by knocking out the champion after seven rounds in a non-title bout at Scranton, Pa. Yarosz, who had agreed to the bout as a tune-up for something better, blamed the defeat on an injury to his right knee.

The champion, in his past few days of training, has danced and skipped around with his sparring partners in a way that indicates he doesn't even think about the knee injury any more.

Tomorrow night's battle will give him an opportunity to show whether he actually can master the Syracuse warrior.

Both fighters wound up heavy training yesterday and appeared in excellent condition for the match, scheduled for 15 rounds to a decision, the winner to be crowned the title-holder.

Grimly recalling the knockout—the only one in a career of 84 fights in which he has lost only two other decisions—Yarosz today gave this statement:

"I hope to stop him. They may not count him out, but I'll hit him so hard and often they'll have to stop the fight if it goes the way I think it will."

Risko remained calmly confident, content to string along with the theory that even though he might be unable to beat some less able fighters, Yarosz is "made to order" for him.

Cards Rally To Trounce Dodgers

Keep Pace With Cubs in Winning, 6-3; Zachary Is Pounded Out.

By the Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 18.—Threatened with another upset by the Dodgers of the same sort that struck them yesterday, the Cardinals came through with a stirring seventh-inning rally today to defeat Brooklyn, 6 to 3, and hold their place 2½ games behind the speeding Chicago Cubs.

The triumph increased the Cards' lead to four games over their recent conquerors, the third-place New York Giants, who were buried by the Cubs today.

After jumping ahead in the first inning, the Cards fell behind in the sixth when the Dodgers bunched three of their six blows off Bill Hallahan for a pair of runs. The "Gas House Gang" came back with its usual scrap, picking up one run in the sixth, then blasting old Tom Zachary out in the seventh to take the lead.

Hallahan retired for a pinch-hitter in that inning and Paul Dean came in to hurl two hitless innings and protect the lead. It was the sixteenth game in the Cards' last 19 in which of the Dean brothers have worked.

Going into the seventh a run behind, the Cards put together four straight singles by Charley Gelbert, Pinch-Hitter Burgess Whitehead, Martin and Jack Rothrock. Zachary retired after the first pair and Bobby Reis after the second two. Emil Leonard came in just in time to have Frank Frisch hoist a long fly and let Martin score the third run. Pepper accounted for the first tally with a triple and Jim Collins scored the other two, hitting two doubles and coming home each time on base hits by Virgil Davis.

Terry Moore Is Lost To Cards for Season

St. Louis, Sept. 18 (AP).—The pennant chances of the St. Louis Cardinals suffered a severe setback today when doctors announced that Terry Moore, the club's rookie star outfielder, would be out for the rest of the season with injuries.

Moore, who has held the regular center field post most of this, his first major league season, was injured yesterday on a slide into second base during the first game of a double-header with Brooklyn.

He was taken to a hospital and physicians said this morning he was suffering from a broken joint in his left ankle.

Rout Three Hurlers for 20 Hits to Triumph by 15-3 Score.

Cubs darted out in front in the second inning when Frank Demaree opened with a double and ran home on a fielder's choice, a lead the Giants wiped out in the third when Castleman singled and trotted home on a triple by Joe Moore, who was out trying for a home run inside the park. In their half of the fourth, the Giants went ahead, 2 to 1, as Mel Ott singled, raced to third on Hank Lieber's single and scored as Gus Mancuso hit into a double play.

What happened thereafter was loud and funny to every one but the Giants. This was the sequence of base hits and errors:

Cavarretta Opens Assault.

Cavaretta opened by singling off Terry's knee. Hack sent him to third with a short single to right. Jurges singled, scoring Cavarretta, Hack stopping at second. Castleman took Root's bunt, but threw late to third and the bases were jammed. Galan then shot a hard grounder at Cuccinello, but he let it bounce away into short right center, drawing error No. 1 as Hack and Jurges galloped across the plate.

Gumbert replaced Castleman and Herman saluted him with a lofty fly that fell on the foul line back of first. Root started home late, but scored as Ott threw low to Mancuso. It was an error for Ott Galan took third on the play and raced home as Lindstrom singled to right. Hartnett continued the scoring orgy by hammering a single to right center, Herman scoring and Lindstrom taking second. Demaree bounced a slow hopper over Gumbert's head, again filling the bases, Cavarretta, up for the second time, hit a hard one at Cuccinello, who juggled but recovered in time to throw Demaree out at first, Lindstrom scoring run No. 7 on the play.

Bases Loaded a Third Time.

Hack was intentionally passed and for the third time the bases were loaded. The fun continued as Jurges beat one into the ground in front of Gumbert, who threw too low to the plate for error No. 3, allowing Herman to score and leaving the bases loaded. Root ended the splurge by grounding into a double play, Cuccinello to Bartell to Terry. The Cubs had scored six of their runs before a man had been retired.

What happened thereafter didn't matter, but in the fifth Galan, Herman and Lindstrom singled in succession. Before the inning ended, Bartell had let a ball roll through him for the Giants' fourth error and the Cubs had rolled over four more runs. They picked up two more in the sixth when O'Dea, playing for Hartnett, tripled with Herman and Lindstrom on base.

The final Giant run came in the seventh. Moore opened with a triple that he could have stretched easily into a homer, and scored on Koenig's double to right center.

Louis' Form Impresses Braddock

Negro Rocks Spar Mates With Short, Hard Lefts and Rights.

Champion May Change His Mind About Baer Scoring Kayo.

COMPTON LAKES, N. J., Sept. 18 (AP).—Heavyweight Champion James J. Braddock, on record as picking Max Baer to stop Joe Louis in the Yankee Stadium next Tuesday night, took one good look at the Brown Bomber today and indicated he may hop to the Louis band wagon.

"I won't say for certain until I see Baer work at Speculator Friday. But if what I hear about his workouts is true, I'm liable to join a lot of the boxing writers and switch. This fellow showed me plenty today."

Louis, who stepped through seven rounds with four sparring mates, seldom cut loose, but Braddock was so impressed with his perfect condition and the way the sloe-eyed Negro throws his punches that he didn't hesitate to predict that win, lose or draw Baer is in for the fight of his life next week.

Baer Hits Harder.

"Max can hit as hard or harder than this boy, but he's got to watch out," said the champion, "Louis hits faster and he hits oftener. He can be hit with a right hand, but he is well protected against left hooks.

"The fight figures to end in a knockout. It looked to me like Joe was doing a lot of experimenting today. I don't think he was bearing down as he can. If he wasn't, it looks all the blacker for Maxie."

At this point Roy Williams, Chicago light-heavyweight, who got fresh with the boss with a left to the head and was all but killed for his impudence, chimed in:

"Mister, you sure are right. If that black boy cut loose with all his power, I'd have been knocked plumb out of that ring."

Except for another boxing session Saturday Louis is all through with hard work. He'll do only a little loosening up tomorrow, Friday and Sunday.

Benny Leonard, former lightweight champion, was a visitor today along with Promoter Mike Jacobs and a crowd of about 4,000 cash customers, mostly members of Louis' race. Benny left with a good impression. He said Louis is more open to head punches than socks to the body.

Favored Kate Leads Virtually All Way to Take Havre Feature

8,000 Watch Mare Win Easily

Felisa, Decorate Score in First and Third for $151.70 Double.

By Walter Haight,
A Staff Correspondent.

HAVRE DE GRACE RACE TRACK, Md., Sept. 18.—Kate, winner of 7 of her 14 starts this year, found conditions to her liking today and romped off with the feature race, for some reason dubbed the Holly Beach. Although Kate appeared to tire in a mile race here last Saturday and was going a mile and 70 yards today for the first time this year, she was installed the favorite and made good at a $6.30 mutuel.

Except for a brief interval just after the start, Kate was throwing her heels at the other four in the field all the way. She had a length and a quarter advantage on Safe and Sound at the all-important finish and was another length in front of Deduce. The two also-rans were Cantine Lass and Chatmoss.

Breaks Alertly.

Jockey Bobby Merritt did the escorting of the Howe Stable mare and he made a good job of it. Breaking Kate alertly, Merritt rated her along in front, always saving something for emergencies. Deduce was first to try to displace the mare, but she drew out on the gelding. Safe and Sound moved up menacingly approaching the stretch, but Kate failed to take him seriously. Merritt gave her a shaking up and she went on to win with daylight to spare. The time of 1:43 4-5 was ordinary.

For the third straight day racing was conducted under ideal conditions. A bright sun aided in bringing out a crowd of 8,500. The track was as fast as it will be, but a trifle dull due to a new top covering placed during the summer.

Double Pays $151.70.

For the third day out of four, the daily double went over the $100 mark. Today's winning ticket was No. 49 and represented the winners of the first and third races, Felisa and Decorate. Those who backed the combination collected $151.70. In the "if" class were a possible $9,712.50 on Disruption, and a $3,227.50 on Swintane had those horses won.

Felisa, a daughter of Toro and the property of Norman Church, got the favorite players away to a flying start by taking the first race over the 6-furlong sprint course. Ridden by Jockey Baalski, Felisa was in front all the way and coasted to the wire ahead of Grand Knight and Flag Raising to pay a $5.90 mutuel.

Sunned Wins Second.

Sunned turned a form flip-flop in winning the second race, another sprint. Nowhere in particular on Saturday when heavily bet, the Ed Crump gelding was a different horse today, holding sway most of the way. Thus a $23.80 mutual was posted. Jakovia and Belle Grier were closest at the end.

The mutuels struck a new high for the day in the fourth race when Decorate, successful half-mile campaigner, paid $55.20. The gelding had a length the better of Jinnee, another fair track star, with Hidden Dust third. Minton, well backed, failed to figure.

Red Wagon Winner.

Four horses arrived at the wire almost in team fashion in the fourth race, with Red Wagon, trained by Guy Bedwell, the winner. Beef Steak, Some Good and Microphone were the others straining every muscle to take the decision. It was the day's fourth sprint event and it was a battle between Red Wagon and Microphone most of the way, with the latter tiring approaching the finish. Red Wagon paid $7.80.

Ross, a horse that missed winning here by going wide at the stretch turn, clung to the rail today and scored a nose victory over High Flag in the sixth race. Witan was third. The winner turned in a reward of $12.70.

The day's finale went to Darkling, with Triolet second and Would Dare third. The mare came from behind in the stretch to pay $4.

King College Drive On To Liquidate Grid Debt

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Bristol, Va., Sept. 18.—King College's drive to liquidate the present indebtedness on the floodlights at Tenneva Field, through the sale of 1,000 season tickets to the five Tornado home games, was launched last night at an enthusiastic and splendidly attended meeting at the Elks Club.

Dr. Robert Yost, of the college faculty, presented the project, outlining the value of Tenneva Field to the community at large, and pointing out that liquidation of the present indebtedness would remove a burden from the Bristol High School Athletic Association. They now contribute 25 per cent of their receipts at night games to help liquidate indebtedness on the floodlights.

The drive will be held Monday, one day only.

Parsons Cubs Beaten By Elkins Team, 6 to 5

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Parsons, W. Va., Sept. 18.—The Parsons Cubs were defeated in the last game of the Green Mountain League baseball season here by the Elkins Merchants, 6 to 5. Burgoyne, playing his first game of the season, made a home run for the Cubs in the sixth inning.

Thomas won over Pierce in another league game, 12 to 0. The second-half championship of the league was won by Thomas.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FELISA, $5.90, $4.10, $2.80; GRAND KNIGHT, $7.40, $4.10; FLAG RAISING, $6.00.

FELISA assumed command shortly after the start, moved clear entering the home stretch, then held away until the end. GRAND KNIGHT, outrun for the first half-mile, worked his way up steadily in the late stages and came with good energy under a drive nearing the end. FLAG RAISING, a keen factor while racing in the first flight, weakened after five furlongs. STILL ALARM, slow to settle in her stride, bettered her position while weaving between horses and came strongly nearing the finish. MEPHISTO, well placed in the early stages, failed to rally under punishment in the closing test.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:50. Off at 2:53. Winner, K. E. Hitt's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUNNED, $23.80, $12.20, $6.00; JAKOVIA, $6.30, $3.70; BELLE GRIER, $3.10.

SUNNED secured racing room on the inside during the opening furlong to gain command, shook off GRACE BUNTING and CURLING after five furlongs, then holding on gamely under punishment, outstayed JAKOVIA. The latter, rated close to the leaders, secured racing room on the inside of the winner when straightened into the home stretch, but failed to make up any ground during the closing furlong. BELLE GRIER, away fast, but lacking early speed, improved her position on the outside and came wiltingly for the closing drive. CURLING was hard ridden for the entire trip and had no mishaps. CHINESE INDIAN raced under strong handling, but could not engage the leaders.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:25. Off at 3:28½. Winner, R. Russell's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DECORATE, $55.20, $15.20, $7.80; JINNEE, $4.10, $3.00; HIDDEN DUST, $5.40.

DECORATE, away quickly and rushed hard to gain a slight lead in the opening stages, shook off BREAD KING when leaving the back stretch, then holding on willingly, outstayed JINNEE after moving into a clear lead. JINNEE, slower than usual to settle in full stride, reached the leaders steadily while racing on the outside, went to the inside after reaching the home stretch and was wearing the winner down at every stride. HIDDEN DUST, hard ridden and in the first flight, continued gamely under strong pressure. MINTON worked his way up on the inside, found racing room, but could not engage the leaders. ALMADEL, JR. closed a good gap from a slow beginning.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:00. Off at 4:02. Winner, A. C. Compton's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—RED WAGON, $7.80, $4.00, $3.20; BEEFSTEAK, $6.40, $5.30; SOME GOOD, $5.90.

RED WAGON, given a breathing spell when unable to outfoot MICROPHONE responded readily after reaching the back stretch, closed in determined fashion and was up in time by a nose. BEEFSTEAK, prominent from the beginning, finished strongly and was up in time by a nose. SOME GOOD broke tardily, was sent up swiftly on the outside in the last half-mile, had a lot taken out of him to enter contention, but held on stoutly under a drive. MICROPHONE was tipped to reach the front while securing racing room on the inside, moved clear entering the home stretch, but faltered from his early efforts. ZAY finished in stout fashion. SATRAPAL was held safe.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000. The Hollybeach. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:30. Off at 4:31. Two-dollar mutuels paid—KATE, $6.30, $3.40, $2.30; SAFE AND SOUND, $4.10, $2.50; DEDUCE, $2.70.

KATE, going in improved fashion, was steadied in front after reaching the back stretch, met persistent efforts from DEDUCE in the first six furlongs, then had enough in reserve to withstand SAFE AND SOUND when put to punishment in the closing furlong. SAFE AND SOUND, trailed close to the leaders, made repeated efforts in the last five-sixteenths, but was not good enough. DEDUCE was under slight reserve while forcing a steady pace in the first six furlongs and held on well when the real test came. CANTINE LASS was in tight quarters midway of the back stretch, eased back to find racing room and held on stoutly. CHATMOSS could not improve his position.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:00. Off at 5:06. Winner, Shandon Farm's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROSS, $12.70, $6.10, $4.60; HIGH FLAG, $9.80, $4.90; WITAN, $3.70.

ROSS, restrained off the early pace, slipped through on the inside in the last five furlongs and, coming strongly after reaching contention, was up in the last few strides. HIGH FLAG, taken into a short lead after reaching the back stretch, raced POLYDEE and ORINOCO into submission, but permitted the winner to come through on the inside and weakened in the closing stride right at the end. WITAN gained steadily when placed to a drive and finished with good courage. ORINOCO, under steadying restraint for the first six furlongs, challenged strongly midway of the final turn, but tired as if short in the final drive. BULL FIGHTER made a weak effort in the last half-mile.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:36. Off at once. Winner, H. Neustetter's br. m. (5), by Macaw—Beaming. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:51 1-5, 1:15 4-5, 1:41 2-5, 1:54 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DARKLING, $4.00, $2.80, $2.40; TRIOLET, $3.20, $2.70; WOULD DARE, $3.00.

DARKLING fought her way through a narrow opening midway of the back stretch to reach a contending position, saved ground after going into a slight lead in the closing furlong, then came gamely when hard ridden. TRIOLET permitted to settle in her best stride before improving her position, swung around her field to gain a forward position at the final turn, but failed to stay with the winner in the closing stages. WOULD DARE fell back when caught in tight quarters leaving the back stretch, was shaken up strongly and came with good energy nearing the end. SUN WAY had a lot taken out of him to gain the lead and he had nothing left when challenged. BARNEY SEXTON began tiring after six furlongs. AIR WAY stopped as did MADGE'S FELLOW.

Ingot Output Off ½ Point to 52% Capacity

Iron Age Sees the Future Dependent on Motor Industry.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 18.—Steel ingot production has receded ½ point to 52 per cent of capacity, Iron Age reported today in its weekly summary of steel trade conditions. The minor change in operations was described as having little significance in connection with the general outlook.

"In its broad trend," the review commented, "the immediate future of steel production is largely dependent on the automobile industry. Motor car makers have encountered unexpected delays in making the transition from old to new models, with the result that steel orders are still confined to relatively small lots.

"Parts makers are now specifying liberally and past experience indicates that car manufacturers themselves will order freely as soon as they get their production machinery working smoothly again.

"Pig iron buying for fourth quarter is active in most market centers. Chicago producers have accumulated the largest backlogs since predepression years. Lake Erie furnaces have the heaviest bookings in two years."

The review reported further advances in heavy melting scrap steel at Cleveland, Buffalo and Boston, and added that though the general upward trend had been arrested it has not been completely stopped. The publication's scrap composite is unchanged at $12.75 a gross ton.

Tin plate output has dropped to 55 per cent of capacity in line with seasonal expectations. Sheet mills are maintaining operations at 70 per cent, strip mills at 45 per cent and pipe mills at 40 to 45 per cent. Wire production has advanced from 45 to 50 per cent.

FHA Mortgages Placed on Sale

Total of $1,250,000 Will Pay 4½ to 5 Per Cent Interest.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Sept. 18.—The first public offering of Federal Housing Administration insured mortgages is being placed on the maket today by Pask & Walbridge, in the amount of $1,250,000, at prices to yield from 4½ per cent to 5 per cent.

In case of foreclosure, the holder is entitled to receive debentures guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States. The mortgages are on properties in Alabama, New York, Pennsylvania, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, New Jersey and California, and have an average life of from 12 to 15 years.

They are being offered in blocks of $25,000 or larger and are serviced by institutions approved by the Federal housing administrator. Mortgage interest and principal amortization are to be paid monthly or quarterly, as desired by the purchaser.

Purchasers of the mortgages are protected against loss by the mutual mortgage insurance fund under the control of the Federal housing administrator.

In the event this fund proves insufficient to pay the principal and interest on the debentures, the holder is protected by the guarantee.

In the event of default by the mortgagor, the holder would secure title to the mortgaged property, and, providing he could not sell the property for an amount in excess of the unpaid principal, interest and expenses, would transfer the title to the Federal housing administrator in return for guaranteed debentures.

Highlights and Background Of Financial News and Trends

Rails Respond to Higher Traffic; Reaction in Closing Minutes Cuts Gains; Wheat Declines.

By Carlton A. Shively.

New York, Sept. 18.—Strength in the rails accompanying traffic reports at the highest level of four years brought increased trading into the stock market today on the buying side. The list was broader and individual blocks were larger, but a sudden reaction at the close halted the general forward movement. Grains dropped back after yesterday's sharp advance, bringing wheat more than a cent lower at the close. Treasurys recovered sharply; low grade corporate bonds shared in the stock upswing.

Occasional waves of profit taking failed to shake out much stock and activity subsided on the dips. Chemicals and steels responded to the suspense in the European tangle.

New highs were established by U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Allied Chemical, Air Reduction, Chrysler, du Pont, Eastman, Monsanto, Case and Johns-Manville before the break.

Rails were 1 to 3 points higher under the lead of Santa Fe, Delaware & Hudson, Great Northern, New York Central, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific. Central and Great Northern hovered around the best prices of the year.

Specialties that attracted attention included Campbell Wyant on a spurt of about 3 points; American Machine & Foundry, Bullard, and Chicago Pneumatic Tool, at new highs, and Celanese and Industrial Rayon, active at higher prices.

Nabisco.

National Biscuit and United Fruit were up more than a point; General Foods and Standard Brands firm.

Public utilities were fractionally better on increased turnover. Tractions averaged a point higher. Rubbers, mail orders, and metals were firm, with Anaconda and Kennecott reaching new highs early in the session.

The estimated gain in car loadings, 10 per cent over last year and 20 per cent higher than in Labor Day week, will carry the total to the highest level of any week since the September peak movement in 1931. Practically all roads are sharing in the improvement, although the grangers still are sluggish. Most pronounced gains were in the bituminous coal areas, presumably reflecting movement as dealers stocked up as a precaution against a mine strike.

Electric power production showed a smaller gain over last year than in the preceding week, the Rocky Mountain district continuing to record the greatest percentage increase.

Banks and U. S. Bonds.

The shake-out in United States Government securities yesterday added to the uneasiness felt by banks everywhere, particularly in the interior, over the position of their Government securities portfolios. Many of these are not only swollen to abnormal proportions, but are heavily weighted with long-term obligations because of the effort to obtain earnings. Big banks here are not particularly comfortable and admit that they could not sell out without large losses because the market is not broad enough to absorb easily the amount held by one or two large banks. Bank officers here who have traveled around the country lately say that the probable direction of the Government bond market and the policy to be followed by the banks in adding to their holdings or liquidating some of them is the primary topic of conversation everywhere.

Privileges.

Suspecting mutiny against the proposal to amend the Stock Exchange constitution by expanding the privileges of governors to place alternates on the floor, one observer reports the indignation of a specialist who noticed a governor and his alternate on the floor at the same time. The specialist could relieve his indignation either by reading the constitution or by preferring charges. The constitution forbids an alternate to work when the holder of the seat is transacting business on the floor of the exchange. The members who realize the need of good management by governors who must sacrifice commission income when they are on special assignments for the exchange are not opposing the extension of the use of alternates with the close restrictions proposed.

No Rail Receiverships In Rest of 1935—Jones

New York, Sept. 18 (AP).—Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, said today that "so far as I know" no railroad receivership is likely to happen during the remainder of this year.

His visit here, he explained, had no connection with matters of railroad or other corporate financing.

Baldwin Chief Asks 6 Million To Save Firm

Files Reorganization Plea With Federal District Court.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Philadelphia, Sept. 18.—George H. Houston, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, declared today that his company faced bankruptcy unless a proposed plan for reorganization, involving a bank credit of $6,000,000 was approved by creditors and the Federal District Court.

Houston's statement was made at a hearing before Howard Benton Lewis, special master, the court's representative. The corporation has applied for reorganization under section 77 b of the revised Federal statutes.

He declared that unless the reorganization plan is proceeded with and not turned down by the court, there was a great likelihood that in a bankruptcy common stockholders would be left without a cent.

It was revealed that the Baldwin company is negotiating for a bank credit of up to $6,000,000 for three years, loans to be secured by general mortgage bonds and stock of the Midvale Co. owned by Baldwin.

Counsel for the protective committees of the preferred and common stockholders announced they approved the plan. Morris Biddle Saul, counsel for the preferred committee, said he represented 50,000 shares. The common stockholders committee represented 275,000 shares, or almost one-third the common stock.

Arthur Garfield Hayes, representing $2,000,000 of the consolidated mortgage bonds, said his clients also approved the plan. "We made an independent investigation," Mr. Hayes said. "We compared Baldwin throughout the depression with American Locomotive Co., their principal competitor, period by period and found that Baldwin had done better.

He said the market value of the consolidated bonds at 60, after selling at 30 previously, confirms their judgment of the soundness of the plan.

Baldwin's losses have averaged $900,000 a year since 1931, but new business had been increasing recently and the losses had diminished, according to Mr. Houston, who estimated that sales for 1935, judged by orders on hand, would be slightly under sales for the 12 months ended on June 30 last. They would be substantially greater, however, than those for the year ended on December 31, 1934, he added.

Steel Prices Unchanged.

New York, Sept. 18 (AP).—Steel prices unchanged.

Industrial Earnings Up 40%, Forecast

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Sept. 18.—An increase of 40 per cent in industrial earnings during the current quarter as compared with the same period of 1934 was forecast today by the Standard Statistics Co. The estimate was based on an increase of 16 per cent in industrial production during the three-month period ending September 30. Railroads will make the most favorable showing, the report stated, with utilities expected to show the first gains over the preceding year since 1931. Steel, automobile and building material producers will also make exceptionally good showings.

Cheap Money Fight Seen in Bond Decline

Lowest Yields in Banking History Create Grave Problem.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 18.—Declining prices in Government securities, coupled with persistent selling in the last three weeks, has been interpreted in some Wall street quarters as an indication of a fight against low money rates.

High prices on Government bonds mean a smaller rate of return in interest to the owner, and for a time this year prices were up enough to cut the average yield on long-term Treasury bonds to 2.44 per cent compared with the high point this year of 2.83 per cent. Recent prices placed the yield at around 2.66 per cent.

Interest rates on investment money in New York are at the lowest point on some classifications in the history of banking, and banks and institutions with large funds to invest have been battling with a reduced income problem.

Some analysts in the bond market declare such institutions are more than willing to see lower bond prices so the yield will be greater.

During this year most of the Government issues reached the highest point of their life, and an easing from these record levels, experts assert, would by no means represent a drastic break.

In addition to the theory that low yields on Governments have caused pressure in the market, some traders trace the inception of the unsettlement back to the auction method the Treasury used in disposing of some recent securities, and the final conversion of $1,250,000,000 in Fourth Liberty bonds.

They decline, however, to pin the present situation directly on to those causes, and among other factors commentators mention with equal vigor is the oft-used and undefined "lack of confidence," the coming session of Congress, the soldiers' bonus, and the uneasiness of investors over the European situation.

Heavy Selling Hits Grain Mart

Breaks of 2 Cents a Bushel Halve Previous Day's Advance.

Chicago, Sept. 18 (AP).—Wheat future prices here broke almost 2 cents at times today, losing half of yesterday's sharp advance which was inspired by fear of African war and serious crop losses in Argentina.

Heavy profit-taking sales poured into the pit as traders sought to take advantage of the recent upturn. Prices in other world markets displayed a similar reaction, with Buenos Aires declining ⅝ cents, and Winnipeg ¾ off. Liverpool wheat closed more than a cent lower.

Some market observers asserted the reaction was to be expected after a steady advance. There were assertions, too, that the serious Argentina crop damage reports received yesterday might have been exaggerated.

Virginia Bank Law Changes Are Considered

Sub-Committee Discusses New Federal Bank Regulations.

By R. Karl von Lewinski.

Changes in the Virginia banking laws to conform with the recently enacted bank bill were considered yesterday by the banking subcommittee of the Governor's advisory council in Richmond, it was learned last night.

Under the leadership of Senator George W. Layman, of Newcastle, the group meeting at the State capitol discussed any changes that might be recommended to Gov. Peery.

Action on the banking regulations of the Old Dominion State has been contemplated for some time, but was deferred until the Federal banking bill became a law.

Amendments designed to broaden the base of investments that may be legally purchased by fiduciaries were recommended by the group.

Affecting section 5431 of the Virginia banking laws, the changes were proposed by Hawes Coleman, trust officer of the State Planters Bank & Trust Co., and James Allison, trust officer of the First & Merchants National Bank, both of Richmond.

Asks Security.

Tax schemes that put corporations on the spot, soak the thrifty and bedevil business generally menace the public's insurance savings, Allen B. Sikes, eastern manager of the bureau of advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, told delegates to the insurance advertising conference in New York yesterday.

Sikes declared that security brought on by economic stability was the prime factor in safeguarding insurance, and that the public must be informed of the fact. If people generally knew more about insurance they would prevent legislative action that could in any way threaten the security of their holdings.

"If, as you insurance men insist, insurance does mean security, this is the time of all times to prove it to the general public," he said. "To insurance men and to the few people who think at all for themselves, insurance must mean a sort of last trench in our economic fortifications. In other words, the small percentage of people who know and who think must believe that when insurance fails, government will be no more—or at least government as we in America know it."

Pennsylvania Gas Tax Boost Lowers Sales

July Use Off 20,000,000 Gallons Despite Gain in Other States.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Philadelphia, Sept. 18.—Gasoline consumption in Pennsylvania dropped 20,000,000 gallons during July, the first month of the increased gasoline tax in the State, according to the report of the director of the Bureau of Liquid Fuels Tax.

The drop, amounting to 17 per cent, occurred in the face of increased consumption in every State with the exception of Delaware, which also increased its tax 1 cent a gallon on July 1.

Gasoline sold in Pennsylvania during June, before the 1-cent increase went into effect, amounted to 118,252,308 gallons. During July it was 98,200,000 gallons, a loss of 20,052,308.

Although it was expected that the recently enacted 1-cent increase in the tax rate would produce approximately $1,000,000 a month in additional revenue, the report of the bureau indicates that only about one-third that amount will be realized. Pennsylvania motorists now pay 5 cents a gallon in taxes, 4 cents of which goes to the State and 1 cent to the Federal Government.

Delaware's decrease in consumption during the first month of its increased tax amounted to 307,000 gallons, a drop of 7 per cent. The new State tax is 4 cents and the Federal tax 1 cent additional.

The experiences of Pennsylvania and Delaware with increased gasoline taxes are substantially the same as that of New York and Nebraska, two other States which increased their levies on motor fuel this year. In New York, where the State tax was raised 1 cent a gallon on April 1, consumption in every subsequent month fell below that of the corresponding month in 1934. Consumption in Nebraska, which raised its tax from 4 cents to 5 cents on March 1, has also shown a decrease from the year before each month, with one exception.

Court Approves Celotex Plan

Three-Year Receivership Ended for Wall Board Firm.

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, Sept. 18.—The plan of reorganization for the Celotex Co. was approved today in a decision handed down by Judge J. P. Nields, of the District Court of the United States for the District of Delaware, according to Leonard W. Proctor, secretary of the reorganization committee.

This is the plan which has been recommended and submitted to security holders of the company by a reorganization committee composed of William B. Nichols, chairman; E. B. Gilmore, John Irwin, I. H. Overman and George M. Seaman.

The Celotex Co., one of the largest manufacturers of wall board in the United States, has been in receivership for over three years. Under this plan, Mr. Proctor stated, it is possible for the company to be taken out of receivership promptly and made a going concern.

Under the terms of the plan, all stockholders will be given the right to exercise their option to subscribe to stock of the new company during the period of 20 days after notice of confirmation of the plan. It is expected that notice of such confirmation will be mailed to all holders of outstanding securities in the next few days.

Power Production Gains 4.3 Per Cent

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 18.—The Edison Electric Institute reported today that power production in the United States for the week ended September 14 was 1,827,513,000, an increase of 4.3 per cent over the previous week and 11.9 per cent over the same week of 1934.

Gains of the major geographical sections last week over the 1934 week follow:

New England, 16.8 per cent; Middle Atlantic, 6 per cent; central industrial, 13.2 per cent; West Central, 11.2 per cent; Southern States, 15.1 per cent, Rocky Mountain, 44 per cent, and Pacific Coast, 7.7 per cent.

Four-Man Pool Seen Backing VanSweringens

Report States $5,000,000 Has Been Raised for Auction Bid.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 18.—The Wall Street Journal in a special dispatch from Cleveland said today that it was learned on good authority, that the Van Sweringen Brothers are backed by a group of four individuals in their move to purchase collateral securing bank loans which is being put up at auction September 30 by the Creditor Banking Syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co.

The group of four men was said to have raised a pool of around $5,000,000 to help the railroad operators in the belief that there is an eventual possibility that the Van Sweringen Railroad undertaking will be profitable.

Part of the group of four was reported to be local Cleveland interests and part from out of town. It was said further that they were understood to be well known, although not necessarily connected with railroad enterprises in the past. The vital block of securities to be auctioned represents a 51 per cent control of Alleghany Corporation, top holding company for the Van Sweringen Railroads.

It is understood, according to the dispatch, that a new corporation will be formed to try to buy in the key securities offered at auction, and that this corporation will later undertake to take over Van Sweringen loans in Cleveland, largely in the hands of closed banks. It is understood the new corporation plans to issue new securities against these loans.

Meanwhile a sharp attack was launched on the Van Sweringen reorganization petition for the Chicago, Eastern Illinois Railway Co., pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Louis B. Wehle, New York attorney, acting for a general mortgage bondholders committee, called the plan "a fundamental violation of the most basic principles of reorganization." Kenneth D. Steer, chairman of the I. C. C., warmly defended the management's program as a well-considered solution.

The hearing was of extraordinary significance since the Van Sweringen brothers have a working control of the C. & E. I., and the bondholders declared that the general mortgage bondholders should get the right to elect at least two-thirds of the board of directors.

The bondholders' committee has as chairman Carrol M. Shanks, general solicitor of the Prudential Life Insurance Co.

John W. Stedman, vice president of the insurance company, who also was present today, as chairman of a bondholders' committee, is fighting the Van Sweringen plan for reorganization of the Missouri Pacific.

It was pointed out that the results in the C. & E. I may foreshadow developments in the more important Missouri Pacific.

SEC Files Rules For Foreign Bonds

The Securities and Exchange Commission yesterday advised the New York Stock Exchange that it forwarded through the State Department copies of the form to be executed by foreign governments and political sub-divisions thereof desiring permanent registration of their bonds under the securities exchange act of 1934.

Under existing Federal law and the rulings of the Securities and Exchange Commission, it will be unlawful for the exchange to permit trading after March 31, 1936, in obligations of this character unless they have been permanently registered.

In order to afford the exchange and the Securities and Exchange Commission sufficient time to determine whether the requirements for permanent registration have been complied with, applications for permanent registration must be filed with the exchange by February 13, 1936.

New York, Sept. 18 (AP).—A New York curb exchange seat was sold for $32,500, an increase of $10,000 over the previous transaction.

Things as They Are

Figures on New Enterprises Tend to Show New Deal Reforms Block Progress.

By Samuel Crowther

FIGURES which have just come to hand give, for the first time, a basis for calculating the real cost of the Roosevelt Administration to the American people and the extent of the economic paralysis brought about by the series of legal ejaculations which, with an odd humor, are termed reform laws.

The figures are of peculiar significance in view of the revival of the attempt to explain away unemployment on the ground that the improvement in machines and methods has been so uncommonly rapid during these several years that both the needs and the wants of the public can now be met with less man power than is available. In consequence, it is averred, we are destined to have a sizable volume of permanent, involuntary unemployment.

The figures tend to show the reverse—that the passion for reform has blocked the ordinary and necessary progress and has reformed some millions of men out of their jobs. In other words, starvation has been substituted for indigestion.

THE whole cost of the Roosevelt Administration to date is not to be reckoned wholly from the Treasury sheets showing how much we have spent. If our normal progress out of depression has been blocked, then we must, in reckoning the total cost, add to the purely financial totals the pause in the accumulation of national wealth and the loss of wages, and hence of comforts, of the millions who have been prevented from working. If private capital has been driven from providing employment and Government capital has not bridged the gap, then those who have prevented private capital from functioning and have provided nothing to take its place are logically to be held responsible for the consequences.

The figures at hand give the new non-government, capital issues in Great Britain and the United States for the first six months of each year from 1926 through 1935. Private capital issues represent the amount of fresh private savings being put into new enterprises or into extending old enterprises. For some time back, all but a negligible portion of the new issues being offered in our markets have been for refunding purposes—that is, to take up older issues. They represent no new net addition to the opportunities for employment.

Here are the figures. Those for the United States are given in millions of dollars and those for Great Britain in millions of pounds. To be comparable, the British figure should be multiplied by the current rate for sterling, but simply multipying them by five will give a sufficiently accurate comparison.

	Great Britain	United States
1926	59	2,522
1927	90	2,826
1928	33	2,968
1929	34	4,699
1930	34	3,666
1931	11	1,311
1932	43	160
1933	40	60
1934	35	99
1935	58	101

The peak of issues in Great Britain came in 1927. The peak in the United States came in 1929. During the first six months of 1935 the volume of private issues in Great Britain was 64 per cent of its pre-depression peak, while for the same period in the United States the volume was only 2 per cent of the peak. The comparison does not mean all it seems to mean, because our total in 1929 was swollen by the investment trust delirium. Because of this, only a fraction of the new issues represented new constructive enterprises. Most of the money went into the bidding up of job lots of existing securities done up in package form.

* * * *

THE comparison of the actual figures is much more instructive. They show that for the first six months of 1935, when we were supposed to be recovering by Government aid, our new issues were $59,000,000 less than during the first six months of 1932, when no one had any doubt as to how badly off we were. They also show that for the first six months of the years 1932 to 1935, inclusive, the new issues in Great Britain, translated into dollars, far more than doubled our own in amount. Considering the comparative resources of Great Britain and the United States, the figures are startling.

What do these figures mean? Talking of new issues is Wall street jargon, and Wall street is quite a distance from Main street and still farther from the man out of a job. But Wall street is only the symbol of private capitalism. It is not the thing itself. The New Deal has confused the two and, hitting at the symbol, has gone far toward destroying the thing itself. With good, but badly informed, intentions, the New Deal has succeeded in freezing the depression by barring new enterprise.

Out of new enterprise and the extension of old enterprise, about one-half of our people earn their livings. Unemployment today is man-made, and the men who have made it are in the Administration.

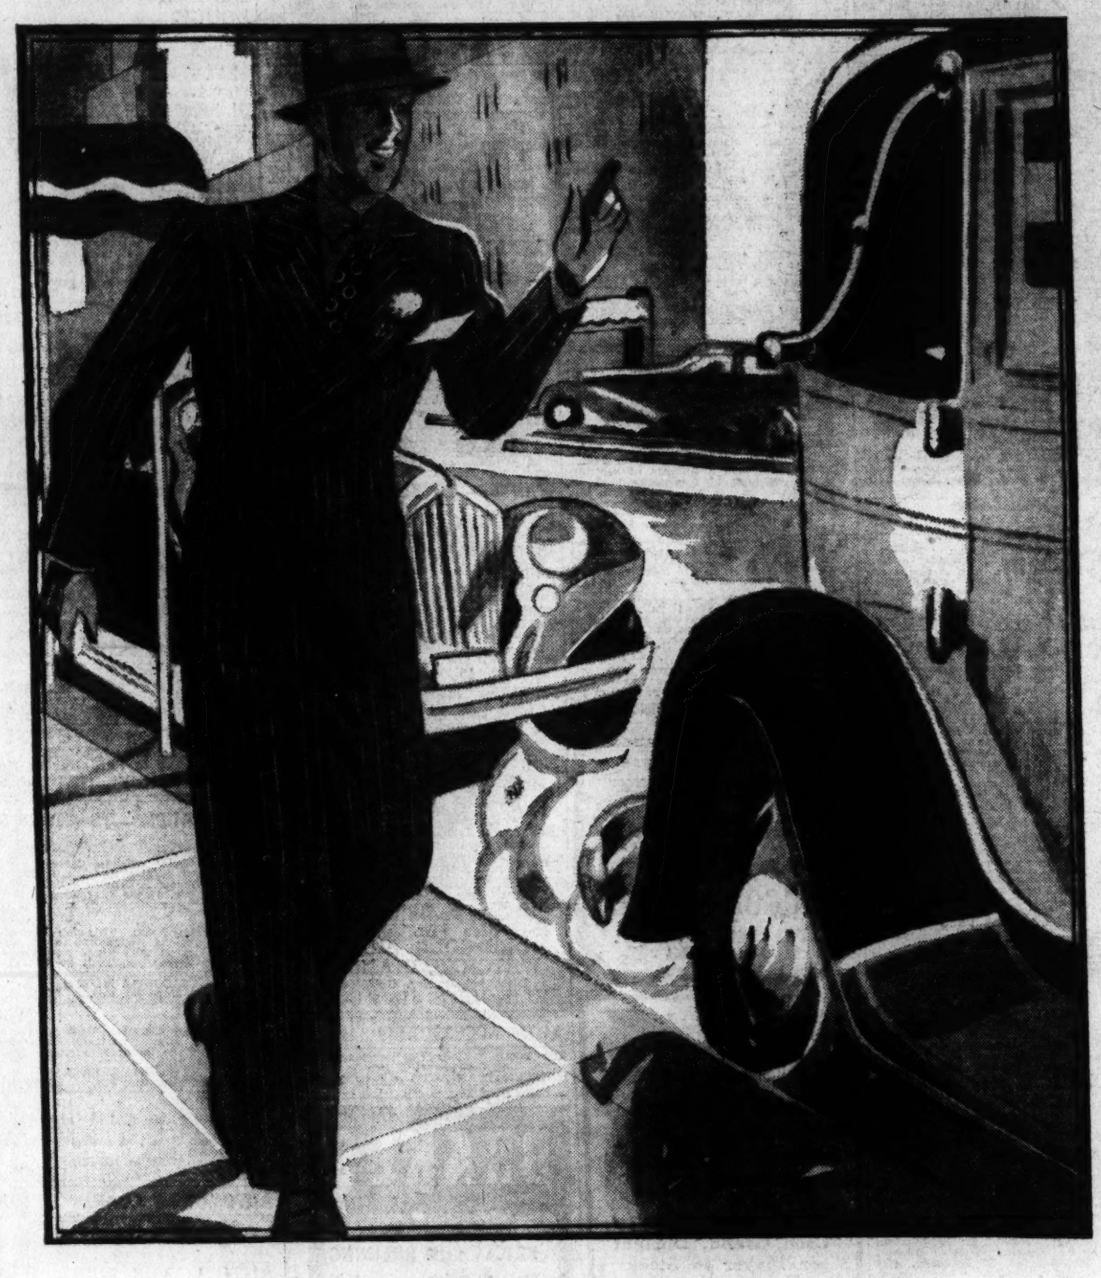
YOUNG MEN GOING PLACES PREFER THE D.B.* WORSTED-TEX



The chaps who are going places and doing things realize that it's a matter of good business to be properly dressed. They know that it's better to be dressed up than to get "dressed-down" by the boss. Most of these go-getters make proper appearance their stock in trade by wearing Worsted-tex suits.

In the illustration above is a faithful representation of the newest model in D. B.* (double breasted) Worsted-tex. It is based on the idea conceived by the Duke of Kent. You have seen social and business leaders in rotogravure sections, news reels and smart magazines, wearing this type of suit.

This particular model, in chalk stripes, is notable by virtue of the special handling of the lapels. There is an uninterrupted line from the peak of the lapel to the buttoning point (and you can wear this suit buttoned on the lowest button if you prefer). This treatment serves to create a triangular effect (which is this season's athletic silhouette) with breadth of chest and lowered waistline.

The fine Worsted-tex fabric is done in typical English patterns, some colorful, some restrained. We particularly commend to your notice the soft natural hang of the suit. $35
